"New crises to new men impart
The sturdy arm, the faithful heart;
But while the old flag waves above
The land he gave to us to love,
Greater than king or emperor
We'll honor Washington: in war,
In peace, the first, and now, as then,
In all our hearts, 'his countrymen.'"

Mrs. Blalock looks at the palm of a Union Station porter.

An encyclopedia firm offers Mr. Coolidge a job at $1 a word. At this rate, by speeding up, he could make $2 a day.

We see by the paper—but not by the sidewalk crossings—that 2,000 men were busily engaged down town yesterday shoveling off the snow.

If Capt. Wilkins is getting the weather reports by radio he'll probably change his mind and remain in the Antarctic.

Henry H. Glasie is charged with not having good eyesight, but since when has that been a qualification of Justice?

Mr. Hoover is criticized for permitting the newspaper men haunting his doorstep to stand outside in a foot of snow, but, after all, why should he show them more consideration than they seem to be willing to show him?

The truth of the matter is that the money that the newspapers of this country have spent during the last few months on Cabinet rumors, back-stairs gossip, rumors, false reports and assorted half-truths, might have financed a scientific expedition or endowed a hospital. Sufficient unto the day is the news thereof.

What's going to happen at the extra session when the irresistible demand of the farmers for a 45 per cent tariff on hides meets the immovable objection of the New England shoe manufacturers?

House bill authorizes $2,100,000 for beginning work on the new $8,000,000 white marble office building annex, but when is the new golf course between the Capitol and Union Station going to be laid out?

Senator Swanson shows how to beat a Senate filibuster on the naval bill without changing the rules. It isn't necessary to chop down an oak tree to get rid of a few pesky chipmunks.

Nineteen are indicted in Chicago for making fake rum labels, but after all, what could be more appropriate for fake liquor? As Mother Goose puts it:

"There was a crooked man, and he had a crooked spouse,
And they all lived together in a little crooked house."

The reparations experts at Paris are still in a muddle over a plan whereby Uncle Sam can be made to hold the bag.

Judging by the brand of weather being served just now, meteorological experts must be laboring under the impression that we're getting ready to inaugurate William H. Taft.

Ancient cannons believed to have been buried by pirates are found in Cuba, bearing dates prior to the era of Columbus, but the thought that old Chris after all wasn't the first man to reach America is somewhat modified by the reflection that the thrifty Ferdinand and Isabella probably armed his fleet with exhibits from the Barcelona museum.

It's getting so nowadays that a rubberneck-wagon tourist passing the corner of Twenty-third and S streets almost feels as though he were being seriously considered for a Cabinet post.

"Kansas City, Feb. 21 (A.P.).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who arrived here late this afternoon by air"—We could have told the A.P. how to have saved telegraph tolls on two words in that clause. This kind of reporting does not come under the head of Coolidgeconomy.

It will be pleasant, indeed, to have Lindbergh serving the Government in Washington, but it must be admitted that the town is already full up with those who are here in an "advisory capacity."

"Jingle bells, jingle bells, jingle all the way,
Oh, how good it is to ride in a two-horse open sleigh."

Mrs. Coolidge comes from a part of the country where the sleigh riding begins in late August and continues until the snow goes off the ground around the Fourth of July, or so it seemed to us when we lived in Massachusetts. The "First Lady" goes for a ride that will take its place in White House history.

The wets are proving that Attorney General Borah will enforce prohibition like he said it that oil fund.

Sir Oliver Lodge is the first man we have ever heard of who sat up waiting for a few words from his wife.

HEAVIEST STORM OF ALL WINTER BLANKETS EAST

Deep Snow Buries States From Atlantic Coast to Mississippi.

MANY CITIES SUFFER TRAFFIC PARALYSIS

Railway and Ship Schedules Disrupted; Several Dead in Intense Cold.

New York, Feb. 21 (U.P.).—A snow blanket spread tonight from Maine to the Northern fringes of the winter storm section and from far at sea into the Mississippi Valley as winter came back with its most vicious gusts of the season for the Eastern half of the United States.

Storm warnings, low temperatures, impeded traffic, steamship and railroad delays, cessation of trolley service, some suffering, all were included in the damage brought about by low barometric pressure which dropped up around Cape Hatteras and spread cloudlike over almost half of the United States.

A survey over the Eastern section of the country shows the following conditions prevailing tonight:

New York City—Eight inches of snow and a minimum temperature of 22.

Concord, N. H.—Twenty-five below zero and driving snow storms.

Crawford County, Pa.—Twenty-five below zero.

Nashville, Tenn.—Fifteen inches of snow.

Philadelphia—Eight inches of snow. Minimum temperature of 20 degrees.

New Haven, Conn.—Four inches of snow.

Harrisburg, Pa.—Twelve inches of snow. Minimum temperature of 14 degrees.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Minimum temperature of 18 degrees.

Charleston, W. Va.—Twelve inches of snow.

Huntington, W. Va.—Eight inches of snow.

City Traffic Paralyzed.

In many cities traffic was at a complete standstill. Nashville, Tenn., has had no trolley service since yesterday afternoon while in Westchester County, N. Y., some of the trolley service was disrupted.

Upwards of 30,000 men were at work through Greater New York City attempting to clear the streets of the soft, clinging snow blanket which has disrupted traffic to the greatest extent since 1928 when a 9.2-inch snow fall was reported.

For the jobless and the children the snow blanket over New York City was a boon. Through Central Park and in the various public squares this morning—even while the heavy flakes were pelting down—youngsters were out with shiny sleds which no doubt had been kept in the attic since Christmas.

The jobless at last had work. The thick heavy blanket started falling about 3 a. m., and by daylight street commissioners realized the various snow plows, scrapers and other snow-fighting implements would have to be brought out to assure a continuance of traffic and business in the Nation's largest city.

Into the Bowery the street department workers went and from the "flop" houses routed out those men whose existence is enlivened by the 50 cents an hour wage which is paid for keeping streets clear of snow. By nightfall more than 30,000 persons were at work for the city in the various boroughs.

Plows Had Been Dismissed.

Brooklyn's cleaning-up campaign was considerably delayed, however, because the snow had been so deep.

Lodge Awaiting Spirit Call From Dead Wife

British Scientist Certain He Will Get a Message; Tells of Plans.

London, Feb. 21 (United Press).—Sir Oliver Lodge, noted British scientist and advocate of spiritualism, discussed today his plans for communicating with his wife, who died yesterday, and said he expected her to "give evidence" from the spirit world shortly.

"It is very likely that my wife is going to talk to me because she knows all about spiritualism like I do and she told me before she went 'there' that she wished to try to give me evidence," said Sir Oliver, in a telephone conversation with the United Press correspondent. The scientist is at his home near Amesbury, where Lady Mary died yesterday.

He said his firm assurance of the survival was a great comfort to him in the death of his wife, who he described as "a wonderful woman and mother."

"I do not expect to hear from her for some weeks," Sir Oliver continued, "or it may be it will be months because one must give 'them' time to become accustomed with new surroundings."

"Likewise 'they' first must have rest on the 'other side.' Meanwhile, I, of course, will be unable to call her. I must depend upon her to communicate through a medium if she so desires. Thus I can only give her such an opportunity."

"But you see she is not alone

SIR OLIVER LODGE.

"there." Already her mother, son and daughter are there and she expects all of them to come to see her and take care of her.

"She was quite ready, in fact, long ago," he continued. "She has been growing weaker and weaker during her illness of eight months."

"Last month she told me she thought it would be best if I went. She said she could not see the object in suffering and insisted that I should be welcomed when I arrived. She said before I went she hoped I would continue to work. She meant physical work for she is not acquainted with my scientific work."

"Sir Oliver paused dramatically and then said in a harsh voice:

"No, I intend to continue alone."

ARMY OF WORKMEN ATTACK SNOWFALL

Transportation Companies and District Government Get Sweepers Out.

HOLIDAY HALTS THE TASK

Due to the fact that today is Washington's birthday and a District holiday, pedestrians in the downtown sections will have to walk through snow and slush at street intersections unless the four hours of sunshine promised today by the Weather Bureau generates sufficient warmth to finish the task that the city workers left unfinished last night.

A small army of workers was put to work yesterday in an effort to clear the streets of Wednesday night's 7-inch snowfall. In all between 1,500 and 2,000 men were employed by the District and the transportation companies, including the Washington Railway & Electric Co., the Capital Traction Co. and the Washington Rapid Transit Co. The men worked valiantly, but when falling temperatures put a stop to the work last night, snow remained in the downtown sections, piled along the curbs.

District officials explained that the reason the snow was left along the curbs in the downtown district was because of the fact that parked automobiles prevented the snow plows from making a thorough clean-up. They explained that if it is still in evidence Friday another army of workers will be put to work shoveling it into trucks which will cart it away.

The officials, however, were hoping that today's temperatures would melt all reminders of the ice king's visit, but the Weather Bureau held out small hope while stating that the snow is over for the time, the bureau predicted cloudy weather, with a minimum of sunshine—not much over four hours, if that. Temperatures similar to yesterday's, when the range was from 21 degrees to 34 degrees, just above freezing, were forecast for today.

Thirty-eight snow plows were put in operation by the District Street

FOUR GAPS REMAIN IN HOOVER CABINET

Justice, Labor, Agriculture and War Posts Reported Still Unfilled.

COAST BANKER IS SCOUT

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

With less than two weeks remaining before he is inaugurated, there are some very prominent gaps in President Hoover's Cabinet slate. It is believed there are at least four of them. It develops at this late stage that the real reason for the absence of definite information on his Cabinet selections.

The furor about Senator Borah of Idaho, being Attorney General and giving the country the best job of prohibition enforcement that it has ever known has had its play, and Mr. Hoover did not suffer from it. The senator is not going into the place, however, and Mr. Hoover must continue his search for an outstanding dry.

He is still looking for a Secretary of Labor, and most likely a Secretary of War and Secretary of Agriculture.

In connection with the Labor post, Henry M. Robinson, Los Angeles lawyer and banker and close friend of Mr. Hoover, appeared again yesterday at the Hoover home, and this time in the role of having been out looking for a Secretary of Labor for Mr. Hoover since he was here last. It is an assignment that would never have been suspected of Mr. Robinson.

Mystery in His Mission.

When he first came into the picture here—when Mr. Hoover was receiving callers at the Mayflower Hotel after his return from South America—he was quite logically associated with the posts of Secretary of State and Secretary of the Treasury. Inasmuch as Mr. Mellon was assumed to have a mortgage on the Treasury portfolio, the Cabinet speculators placed Mr. Robinson in the Secretary of State.

But then the word came wafting out from somewhere, gaining currency whether it had authenticity or not, that he had told Mr. Hoover that because of personal matters he could not accept the post.

FOES OF NAVAL BILL DEFEATED IN SENATE VOTE

Measure Taken Up, 63-5, Assures Its Passage, Leaders Say.

FUNDS ARE PROVIDED TO BEGIN ON CRUISERS

Swanson Outwits Filibuster of Five Members; Final Ballot in Day or Two.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

After breaking the force of a sharply conducted filibuster Senate supporters of the Navy bill obtained an agreement to limit debate to 10-minute speeches after 3 o'clock today. Passage of the bill, which provides supplies for the Navy as well as money for beginning work on the new cruisers, is now assured.

The decision came unexpectedly after a day devoted to filibustering tactics which were at times entertaining and at times absurd. During the early hours of the session it looked as if opponents of the cruiser bill might even block the motion to bring the Navy supply bill before the Senate for consideration.

Senator Hale, in charge of the bill, brought it up during the morning hour, but at 2 o'clock the Edge Nicaragua Canal survey resolution became automatically the unfinished business.

Edge Deals Plan Blow.

Senator King had the floor when the hour of 2 o'clock arrived, and he declined to yield to Senator Hale so as to permit the Senator from Maine to move to displace the Nicaraguan measure.

Previously Senator King had forced the reading of the bill, which meant delay, and was in line with the anticipated time-consuming program of the filibuster.

King, Blaine and Dill sought to encourage Senator Edge to insist upon keeping his Nicaraguan measure before the Senate. But Edge said it was obvious that his bill would be merely used as a vehicle for the anti-Navy filibuster and therefore declined to press it.

This was a blow to the filibuster and Senator King then yielded to Senator Hale and the latter moved to take up the Navy bill.

Brookhart Takes Part.

It looked as if the first hurdle had been cleared for the Navy bill, but after a chorus of "ayes" had responded to the motion, Senator Dill intervened and prevented the completion of the viva voce vote. Senator Fess, in the chair, ruled that the motion to take up the bill had not carried.

When Dill completed a brief speech, Hale again made the motion and again there was a chorus of "ayes." But Brookhart at this period stepped into the breach and prevented the completion of the viva voce vote.

Senator Norris, taking a quiet but effective part in guiding the filibuster, moved from one side of the chamber to the other conferring with members of his group. Brookhart continued with a lengthy speech to an audience on the floor which had dwindled to a handful of senators.

Some Concern Develops.

There was some concern over the situation at this juncture because the motion to take the Navy bill up had been blocked and there was uncertainty as to how desperate the program of the filibusters might be. It was decided by supporters of the bill to hold the Senate in session continuously until the motion to take up the bill had prevailed or been put to a vote.

An unexpected turn of affairs facilitated the Navy program at 3:30. Whether the filibusters were taken unawares or whether the pattering progress of the filibuster had begun, was not clear.

Senator Harrison, indirectly, helped in the smoothing-out process by letting the filibusterers know that they were not alone.

MRS. BLALOCK IS HERE; JUSTICE AGENTS HIDE HER FOR "PROTECTION"

U. S. Post Is Advisory Task, Lindbergh Says

Colonel, Down for Repairs at Kansas City, Declares Position in Commerce Department Is Not of Executive Nature.

Makes Trip From Chicago, Leaving Collins, Who Went for Her.

CHIEF HOOVER MEETS PALMIST AT STATION

Talks Over Future Plans, Then Departs for Rooms Waiting Return.

DECISION TO RETURN CAUSED BY "SHADOWS"

Great Secrecy Observed Here, Trainmen Aiding Federal Authorities; Trial Plans.

Mrs. Helen F. Blalock, seventh street palmist and recipient of the alleged "Heartsease Daddy" letters of Capt. Guy E. Burlingame, voluntarily came back to Washington last night.

Immediately upon her arrival at the Union Station at 9:35 o'clock from Chicago, the accused of the suspended police captain was swallowed in the protective secrecy which Department of Justice agents had promised her.

Mrs. Blalock, tired mentally and physically from the month of dodging back and forth across a greater part of the United States, was met at Union Station by J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, and a group of picked assistants.

Immediately upon her arrival Mrs. Blalock was whisked away to a hiding place which Department of Justice agents had promised her no one could find, and, following a short talk with Hoover, during which her plans for the future were discussed, retired for a night's sleep under protection from molestation.

Assistant District Attorney William H. Collins, who arrived in Chicago yesterday morning, armed with a Federal subpoena ordering Mrs. Blalock to appear before the Federal grand jury here Saturday morning, only to discover Mrs. Blalock had decided to return the night before, will confer with this morning shortly after his arrival here at 9:30 o'clock.

Officials Maintain Secrecy.

Officials of the Department of Justice last night flatly refused to discuss the whereabouts of Mrs. Blalock other than to say that wherever she might be she is under the constant protection of their agents, and will be afforded full protection against her fear that her life might be endangered in Washington.

Elaborate precautions were taken last night to bring Mrs. Blalock into the city without any one being able to follow her movement.

Union Station officials collaborated with Department of Justice officials in this respect. When it was first suspected that Mrs. Blalock was coming in on the Baltimore & Ohio train due here at 9:42 o'clock, orders were given to speed up the schedule of arrival.

Furthermore, officials at the Union Station took extreme care to have the train announcements on the board in the concourse state that her train would arrive on time. The board also indicated that the train would arrive on track 13.

Train Changes Its Tracks.

Instead, the train carrying Mrs. Blalock was hustled into the yards via a little used track and Mrs. Blalock, accompanied by two men and one woman operatives out of the Chicago office, were led through an entrance used only by high Government officials and distinguished visitors to this country.

Furthermore, station officials denied newspaper men the privilege of entering the train shed.

Outside the station a line of automobiles, chauffeured by secret service operatives, stood ready to carry Mrs. Blalock to safety. Had any person attempted to follow her, they would have been shot.

Train Changes Its Tracks.

Instead, the train carrying Mrs. Blalock was hustled into the yards via a little used track and Mrs. Blalock, accompanied by two men and one woman operatives out of the Chicago office, were tempted to get near Mrs. Blalock or attempted to follow the automobile in which she was taken into seclusion. They would have been blocked by other cars ready for such an emergency.

Shadows Caused Return.

Mrs. Blalock's sudden decision to return voluntarily to Washington was made late Wednesday night. When she was taken into seclusion, she was being shadowed, she realized that further escape was impossible and decided to return to Washington on the next train. She would not even wait until morning, when the train carrying Collins and a representative of the local bureau of the Department of Justice was due to arrive.

Mrs. Blalock's decision to return to this city indicated but one thing to those connected with the Burlington case, and that was that she had made up her mind to return and go through with the accusations she had made against Capt. Burlington more than two months ago to Representative Gibson, of Vermont, chairman of the committee of the House District Committee investigating District affairs, and later to Representative Blanton, of Texas.

Proves Elusive Fugitive.

Mrs. Blalock proved to Department of Justice agents that she was a most elusive person and exhibited a cleverness that had the best investigators in the department baffled for nearly the entire time during which she was missing. It was only when she ran short of funds that the agents were finally able to "shadow" her. They always had been close to her trail, but it was only last Tuesday that they were able to track her during her every movement about Chicago.

Mrs. Blalock, it developed, kept in close touch with her brother and sister-in-law during her stay in Chicago, but refused to stay at their home, preferring a rooming house in the outskirts of Chicago as the better place to hide. Mrs. Blalock knew she was being shadowed, but had no idea that she was being shadowed until the agents approached her. Several times she was seen to buy Washington papers and scan the pages for news of the Burlington case and of the progress of the hunt for her.

She also was communicated with by persons, although during the entire time she was reported missing no one would come forward with information that could have brought the nationwide search for her to an early close.

Will Not Delay Trial.

Mrs. Blalock's return will make no difference in plans to go forward with the trial of Capt. Burlington tomorrow morning before the special police trial board it was said at the District Building yesterday.

Burlington will be tried of the charges which already have been formally presented against him, based on the "Heartsease Daddy" and other letters he is said to have written Mrs. Blalock, declared William W. Bide, corporation counsel, who, with Walter L. Fowler, assistant corporation counsel, will conduct the prosecution before the trial board.

If Mrs. Blalock appears and is willing to testify and evidence can be found to substantiate more serious charges against the police captain such charges will be the subject of a second trial, it was said.

Trial Board Is Limited.

Should the special trial board, composed of Maj. D. A. Davidson, assistant engineer commissioner, chairman; Dr. Edgar Boock, superintendent of Gallinger Hospital, and William F. Richards, District tax assessor, find Burlington guilty of writing the letters and decide he should be punished for writing them, then that will be the matter so far as trial board proceedings are concerned. The board can not do more than sentence a policeman to be dismissed from the force.

In that event any other proceeding would be up to the district attorney and the grand jury. Should Burlington be acquitted, or punished by the trial board but left on the force, then he will, of course, be subject to further disciplinary action and a second trial on other charges would be in order.

Maj. Davidson held a meeting with members of his office in the District Building yesterday morning, at which time there was a brief discussion of the authority of the board in law and its limitations, but there was no discussion of the charges. Nor was Bide at the meeting. Both he

Fruits of Vatican's Accord Yet to Come, Says Pontiff

Pope, Receiving Correspondent, Declares "We Must Now Put Into Force What We Have Established;" Pius XI Pleased by World-Wide Congratulations.

By THOMAS B. MORGAN.
(Copyright, 1929, by the United Press.)
Rome, Feb. 21 (U.P.).—The fruits of the Vatican's recent agreement with the Italian government are still to come, said Pope Pius XI today in expressing his great pleasure and the jubilation of Catholics of the world with the settlement of the 59-year-old Roman question.

"We now begin to put into force the things we have established and there is still much work to be done," said the Pope in an exclusive interview with the United Press correspondent in the private library of his holiness at the Vatican.

The Pope, wearing a white cassock and his zucchetto, or skull cap, sat at his desk and spoke in a calm, deliberate way. He showed in the sureness with which he spoke that he was perfectly satisfied with the accord between Italy and the Holy See, in which he personally, for the Holy See, had a preponderant part and for which he publicly accepted responsibility.

Received in Library.

He did me the honor of receiving me in the intimacy of his library to which I was ushered through the gorgeous surroundings of various antechambers passing between lines of guards with drawn swords. The pontiff seemed in perfect health, his cheeks held a good color, his voice was clear and direct and his gestures firm and steady.

"You are indeed welcome," he said, speaking first in Italian and then in English. Motioning me to an arm chair by the desk, his holiness started speaking.

"You have had plenty of work during these last days," he commented and I told him that the Rome correspondent of the United Press had been through the most momentous developments attending the settlement.

"It is wonderful to hear the news from all over the world on how the great events of the past few days have been received," the Pope said. "We have received a real avalanche of telegrams of jubilation and a real world-wide expression of delight from even the most remote places."

World Joins in Rejoicing.

"From North and South America have come hundreds of telegrams. From even as far away as Australia they have come in by scores and from far off New Zealand. It is very gratifying to us to learn of these expressions and to feel that the whole Catholic world has received the events of the past few days with this remarkable joy which shows that they have understood with us and that they rejoice with us."

The Pope's keen memory was a revelation and he recalled names and places in all parts of the world. He expressed joy with the response of Catholics and the manner in which they flocked to churches to observe the event.

His very person seemed to radiate power and as sovereign pontiff on whom the spiritual responsibility of 300,000,000 Catholics depends, he seemed fully to express that lofty responsibility and to embody it. He will celebrate his seventy-second birthday May 31.

The Pope leaned back in his chair and regarded his listeners as he continued. "People all over the world have crowded churches to offer thanks, as if, indeed, this reconciliation were part of them, and it was a part of them. The fact that it was so far away from them in distance did not lessen their great joy, but even added to their enthusiasm. It was as if there were a real festive occasion in their own country."

Tells of Many Telegrams.

He then named some of the places from which telegrams had come, including Providence, R. I.; San Antonio, Tex.; New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Washington and Boston.

"They all express this great joy," he said simply.

"Yes," he continued, "from Cardinal Hayes and other cardinals came wonderful telegrams and from Mr. Schrems, of Cleveland, and Mr. Hickey, Bishop of Providence. They all say the churches were never so full and the people never so enthusiastic. "From all parts of South America came cablegrams showing the joy there is just as great, and we share that joy, for we believe it has been God's will." He then discussed briefly the agreement itself, observing that the justice of the settlement had been recognized by such a great part of the world. "It is in the future that we will see the good that it will bring, for this is just the commencement. We now begin to put into force the things we have established and there is still much work to be done."

Interested in News Service.

The Pope expressed interest in how the news of the agreement was carried by cable, telegraph and wireless throughout the world. He asked various questions about the work of newspaper men. He spoke of the work of the press and expressed his good wishes that it should prosper. He said in the manner of a final greeting, signifying that the interview—which had lasted 15 minutes—was drawing to a close.

The correspondent arose and the Pope imparted his blessing in a fatherly and kindly way, raising his hand over my head and pronouncing the benediction. As I moved aside a little, he looked down at his desk and then lifted up his eyes and said:

"Tell all your collaborators that they have our blessing and carry to them my invocation to God for their welfare."

As I stepped backward toward the door, he raised his hand and said, with a smile, in English:

"God bless you."

One of the secret chamberlains entered and escorted the correspondent from the Pope's presence into an antechamber. Prof. Franz Bohounek, Czech scientist who accompanied Gen. Umberto Nobile to the North Pole, appeared for his audience with the pontiff.

Swiss Guards on Duty.

Except for the informality and graciousness of the Pope himself in his library, his visit was accompanied by all the dignity and ceremony that surrounds a Vatican procedure. About a score of Swiss guards, in full uniform, arrived and from Clementine Hall the way was led to the first reception room. In the next room the correspondent was met by Maj. Charles Vaughan, papal chamberlain, who led the way to the first throne room.

Maj. Vaughan then led the way to another antechamber, and we waited until Mr. Caccia, master of the papal household, announced that the Pope would see the correspondent. To my amazement the way was led through the throne room to the Pope's private library, where I discovered the Pope was to receive me in audience beside his desk.

Pope Pius previously has exhibited a rather shy attitude toward the press. He recalled, however, that the United Press Bureau had translated the historic encyclical of January, 1928, in which he had given his pronouncement on various movements demanding church unity. The entire encyclical of 5,000 words was cabled to the United Press in New York. The incident came to the attention of the Pope, who expressed his pleasure.

TACNA-ARICA PEACE DENIED AT SANTIAGO

Reports of Agreement Lack Foundation, Says Foreign Minister of Chile.

NEGOTIATIONS GOING ON

Santiago, Chile, Feb. 21 (United Press).—Recent indications that Chile and Peru had reached an agreement ending the long dispute over the possession of the Tacna-Arica territory were shattered tonight by an official denial issued by the foreign ministry here.

Conrado Rios Gallardo, Chilean minister of foreign affairs, said that no settlement had been reached and that the "situation is unchanged." Reports of an agreement are without foundation, the foreign minister said.

Negotiations had been progressing favorably for several weeks between representatives of the two countries, and it was reported last night that an agreement in principle on nearly all points had been reached.

Proposals for Division

The agreement reported involved division of the two disputed provinces, with the provision that the only seaport, Arica, would be open to both countries. Part of the Arica territory was to go to Peru and part of Tacna to Chile, the division line to be along the railway running from Arica to La Paz, capital of Bolivia, with Chile in control of the railway. Peru was to have acquired the territory north to the Sama River, which is the boundary between the province of Tacna and Peru.

Peru also would have acquired the railway line from Arica to the inland city of Tacna, affording a line to the seaport for Tacna. Chile was to continue control of Arica, with new docks and buildings to have been constructed within a certain boundary line there for Peruvian use and under control of Peru.

Question 50 Years Old.

The Tacna-Arica question arose nearly 50 years ago, after Chile defeated Peru in a war and seized the two provinces, which she was to govern for ten years before permitting the residents to decide which country they would be a part of. The poll was never held because of a dispute over what residents were entitled to vote, and the quarrel remained unsettled. Last year the two countries resumed diplomatic relations for the first time in years.

Lima, Peru, Feb. 21 (U.P.).—Alexander P. Mackenzie, United States Ambassador to Peru, who has played an important role in the Tacna-Arica negotiations, replied to reports of a settlement today by saying, "I only wish it were true."

"Cliff" Durant Settles Wife's Alimony Claim

San Francisco, Feb. 21 (A.P.).—R. C. "Cliff" Durant, automobile manufacturer, and Mrs. Pearl Durant, his former wife, have settled the latter's suit for $28,000 unpaid alimony out of court. G. Connelan postponed the hearing until March 2. Durant is now in the East.

King George to Return To Norfolk When Safe

London, Feb. 21 (U.P.).—King George will be removed from Craigwell House, Bognor, to Sandringham, the royal estate in Norfolk, as soon as the court doctors consider it safe, it was understood tonight.

The king is said to be eager to go, but it probably will be many weeks before he is permitted to make the trip, it was said. His majesty was able to walk about the room with the aid of a stick Wednesday for the first time since his illness started.

Ranger and Naturalist Drowned in Canyon

Grand Canyon, Ariz., Feb. 21 (A.P.).—James P. Brooks, chief forest ranger of Grand Canyon National Park, reported tonight that Fred Johnson, ranger, and Glenn Sturdevant, park naturalist, his two companions in a Government boat, were lost yesterday on the Colorado River when their craft was hurled against the rocks in Horn Creek Rapids.

Brooks, who was carried downstream many yards, succeeded in reaching shore and arrived here tonight.

Guatemala Volcano Hurls Ashes Miles

Eruption of Santa Maria Is Accompanied by Quake; Relief Work Planned.

Guatemala City, Feb. 21 (A.P.).—The volcano, Santa Maria, broke into eruption today, hurling ashes and enormous quantities of sand over the rich and populous southern coastal region.

Ashes are reported to be falling at Tapachula, Mexico, 60 miles away. The disturbance shows signs of abating, but the government has ordered precautionary steps for the protection of the inhabitants. Santa Maria has shown signs of restlessness in recent weeks and Guatemala is disposed to blame the volcano for a series of earthquakes.

The last serious eruption of the volcano was in 1902. It is in the department of Quetzaltenango in western Guatemala and is more than 10,000 feet high.

SECOND DEFICIENCY BILL CUTS DRY FUND

$2,727,914 for Enforcement Provided in Measure Reported to House.

MAY END LONG DISPUTE

(Associated Press.) An eleven-hour attempt to settle the dispute over providing additional funds for prohibition enforcement was continued to the house yesterday by the appropriations committee in reporting a second deficiency supply measure. The bill calls for a total expenditure of $1,919,999,000 and includes all items embodied in the first deficiency bill except the controversial $24,000,000 prohibition item. This first supply bill, under the plan of congressional leaders, will be permitted to die in conference.

An amendment will be offered in the house to incorporate $2,727,914 in the second bill for prohibition. This amount has been recommended by President Coolidge as a substitute for the larger sum.

May Need Dry Opposition.

Whether this plan will meet with the approval of those desiring a greater amount of money to enforce the dry law remains to be seen. The dispute over more funds for the purpose has been going on intermittently since session. Senator Bruce, Democrat, Maryland, initiated discussion of the question by seeking $250,000,000 additional for enforcement, and Senator Harris, Democrat, Georgia, sponsored the $24,000,000 proposal. The house turned thumbs down on both items, and now will be asked by its leaders to vote $2,727,914 for this purpose. Of this amount, the prohibition bureau would receive $1,719,444, the Department of Justice $150,000, the Customs Bureau $707,860, and the Civil Service Commission $150,000.

There was no indication yesterday whether House Democrats would accept the smaller amount. Wednesday in the Senate, Glass, of Virginia, announced he believed any supply bill carrying a smaller amount than $24,000,000 would encounter difficulty.

The bill reported yesterday among other things carried authority for the Civil Service Commission to use a part of its funds to speed up the examination of applicants for places in the prohibition bureau. Already there are 5,000-odd seeking these positions and it was estimated that the $500,000 recommended by the Budget Bureau would cause the work to lag for 21 months.

Bill in Three Sections.

The $191,999,000 measure was divided into three sections, one covering the latest emergency recommendations, another the increases necessary to care for salary raises to Government employees under the Welch act, and the third carrying the items in the first deficiency bill.

Under the first section were a wide variety of items, totaling $78,677,229 for the different activities of the department for which insufficient funds were provided in making the regular appropriations for this year's work. Its recommendations included a $11,185,000 item for 96 public building projects in different sections of the country.

Chief among the controversial items in the measure is $75,000,000 for tax refunds. The proposal encountered considerable resistance from Democratic leaders when it was brought to the floor in the first supply measure, but it is not known whether they will revive opposition to it.

Sinclair Contempt Case Review Sought by U. S.

Steps to have the United States Supreme Court review the entire contempt of court case against Harry F. Sinclair, Henry Meany Day, William J. Burns and W. Sherman Burns were taken yesterday by Assistant District Attorney Neil Burkhshaw on direction of District Attorney Leo A. Rover. The same procedure which sent the contempt of the Senate case against Sinclair from the District Court of Appeals to the higher court will be followed.

Burkhshaw was instructed to take the matter up with Solicitor General Mitchell, who has jurisdiction to make requests for a review by the Supreme Court in Government cases. The action was taken following certiorari granted by the Court of Appeals of five questions involving the law in the case to the higher court for its decision. Sinclair and the defendants were adjudged in contempt by Justice Frederick L. Siddons in the District Supreme Court for alleged shadowing of the Fall-Sinclair conspiracy jury.

BROKERS' LOANS CUT $91,000,000 IN WEEK

Federal Reserve Statement Shows Second Decline Since Warning.

BILL SEEKS BANK DATA

(Associated Press.)

A decline of $91,000,000 in the amount of money loaned to brokers and dealers by New York Federal Reserve members was announced yesterday in the weekly statement on these loans by the Federal Reserve Board for the week ended February 20.

The decline was the second since the warning by the board on February 7 that the use of Federal Reserve credit for speculative purposes must be restrained. In the two weeks the total has decreased $192,000,000, while in the week prior to the warning the total loans were $5,669,000,000, a high record.

The two weeks previous to this high record period also had shown successive high marks. The loans for the week ended February 20, the board's statement showed, amounted to $5,477,000,000, while those for the week before totaled $5,568,000,000. The detailed distribution showed that the banks had reduced their own loans by $74,000,000 to $1,028,000,000, and that the loans for out-of-town banks had dropped $79,000,000, to $1,789,000,000.

The money loaned for the account of others over which neither the banks nor board can exercise any control increased $58,000,000, to $2,689,000,000. Last week the amount of money loaned for the account of others showed a decrease of $9,000,000, dropping to $2,612,000,000 from $2,621,000,000 of the previous week.

During the day in the House a resolution to direct the Federal Reserve Board to inform the House as to the amount, rates of interest and rates of discount loans made by Federal Reserve Banks of New York, Chicago and New Orleans to persons for the purpose of speculating in various agricultural products was introduced by Representative Brand (Democrat), Georgia.

The measure would provide that the information be furnished covering a four-year period beginning January 1, 1925. The board would be instructed under the resolution to disclose the fluctuations in discount rates in the institutions during that period and the reasons therefor, and the effect on the price of cotton, tobacco, corn, wheat, swine and cattle.

ENTIRE EAST UNDER RECORD SNOWFALL

Railway and Ship Schedules and City Traffic Suffer in Big Storm.

SEVERAL DEAD IN COLD

the street commissioner claimed the weather department had missed wrong Michael Laura, the assistant commissioner, said he asked yesterday whether winter was gone for good.

Winter is broken," he insists the Weather Bureau answered.

So Laura ordered the 300 snowplows in the borough dismantled. Clean-up work there could not be continued today until these plows were reassembled.

Railroad delays were reported by every line. Fast passenger trains were operating for a few minutes to two hours behind schedules. Suburban trains were delayed, trolleys were behind schedule and some of the elevated lines reported delays.

In the Times Square district, along the water front, in the merchandising section of lower Broadway and in the city center, traffic was hampered until the streets were cleared and the tons of snow pushed to the corners for later collection.

Steamship traffic suffered. Five liners, mostly from South America, were held at Quarantine for hours, while the New York City must depend on incoming trains for the major portion of its food supply.

Storm warnings have been issued all along the coastline as the storm was not completely left. The barometric low area is reported sweeping toward the Atlantic, transatlantic steamship paths which may delay many of the incoming vessels.

The South is in the grip of one of its worst storms. In the blue grass region of Kentucky snow blankets ranging from 10 to 20 inches are reported. North Carolina, just to the north of the semitropical Florida winter region, has snow and cold weather.

Alabama, Georgia and States bordering reported low temperatures. Tennessee has its worst snow conditions in years. At Nashville the heavy snow has almost disrupted traffic and similar conditions are reported from other sections of the State.

Relief Reaches Buried Town.

Silverton, Colo., Feb. 21 (United Press)—Eighteen days of imprisonment for the 1,500 residents of this mining town were ended late today when railroad crews finally battered their way through huge banks of snow hurled down onto the narrow gauge railway in Animas Canyon by mountain snowfalls.

At 5:10 p. m., a 38-car train, pulled by two engines, steamed into Silverton, closely followed by another train. The town had been without daily products and fresh vegetables since February 3, when Garfield slide sent an avalanche of snow onto the Denver & Rio Grande Western tracks. 7 1/2 miles south isolating the town except by wire communication.

A whole carload of fresh meat, another of smoked meat, a carload of milk and a car of fresh eggs and milk were in the first train to arrive. All of these supplies had to be shipped into Silverton, because San Juan County, of which Silverton is the county seat, is without a single farm. Mining of precious metals is the county's business, and the largest part of the freight on the first two trains was coal, lumber and other mining supplies.

The blockade was not broken without extreme difficulty, and one near-tragedy. Engine No. 4 of the Silverton Northern Railway, carrying a crew of six men, left the tracks near Elk Park and toppled down an embankment into the Animas River.

E. H. Myers, master mechanic of the Silverton Northern, was severely injured. The other members of the crew jumped in time to escape injury. Myers was brought to Silverton for medical attention on the engine of the first train to arrive.

The severe cold in the canyon was blamed for the spreading rails.

Plane Takes Food to Victims.

Rock Springs, Wyo., Feb. 21 (A.P.)—With huge snowdrifts blocking ingress to the Red Desert of Wyoming, where between 50 and 60 persons have been marooned in a fleet of 23 trucks since noon Monday, the Boeing Air Transport Co. this afternoon dispatched a plane from Salt Lake City to carry provisions to the storm victims.

One thousand pounds of food and blankets are in the plane. The provisions will be dropped to the stranded party.

Three rescue trucks which left here last night and today to relieve the party are now believed trapped by the snow in the white wilderness.

Cleaning Department early yesterday morning when it was seen that the snowfall was a heavy one and would clog the streets unless removed. Three others were put in operation by the bus company, which kept its bus routes sufficiently free of snow to maintain its service.

Car Tracks Cleared.

Twenty-five scrapers were put into operation by the two street car companies as well as 37 sweepers which were busy all night and for many hours through the day sweeping snow from the car tracks.

The regular force of 250 men in the employ of the District were supplemented by the hiring of many extra men, although the exact number employed was not known definitely. Inasmuch as the various gang foremen were given authority to employ the men they needed to clear the sections of streets assigned to them.

Morris Hacker, superintendent of the Street Cleaning Department, estimated that the cost of removing the snow from the city streets would be some $200,000. The cost of the stamps even which will be paid out of the $500,000 street cleaning appropriation. What is used up now will not be available for keeping the streets clean next summer.

Streets will be given extra flushing at night, too, it was said, unless temperature drops and there would be danger of the water used in flushing turning to ice, which would be more dangerous and difficult to handle than the snow.

Hacker explained that the work will be let up today because it is a holiday and the District has no authority to pay the men any extra money for working on holidays. He said that all the men who ask for jobs can have them at 8:45 a day until the job is completed.

Twenty-four stretches of streets were set aside yesterday by Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, superintendent of police, to provide the children of Washington protected spaces for sledding.

The streets are to be roped off and excluded from sledding from 11 o'clock daily until the temperature rises and the snow disappears. If the snow remains, however, the streets will not be roped off Sunday.

Streets Given to Children.

The streets fixed by Maj. Hesse follow: First northwest, L to M; Fifth northwest, L to M; N southwest, South Capitol to First; Ninth southwest, C to D and D to E; McLean avenue southwest, Third to Fourth and a-half; Fourth to Fifth; THE METHOD TO SETTLE REPARATIONS SEEN Subcommittee Proposes Trade Under Dawes Plan, Is Report in Paris.

NEW BASIS OF PAYMENTS

Paris, Feb. 21 (A.P.).—The subcommittee of the second Dawes reparations commission, which has been wrestling with the question of how the full amount of Germany's future payments, was understood tonight to have found a roundabout way of getting at the subject.

Today's exchanges were said to have resulted in considerable progress, and the hope was expressed tonight that when the full committee meets tomorrow, under the chairmanship of Owen D. Young, of the United States, it could go ahead under full steam.

The negotiations ran into a snag several days ago after preliminary statements had been made by Germany. The time had come to talk figures, but it was known that Germany wished to pay what France, Belgium and Italy wanted her to pay was so far apart that a compromise seemed impossible.

A subcommittee of two failed to discover a way to approach the subject from any other angle, but the enlarged subcommittee of five hit on the idea that Germany's capacity to transfer money or payments in kind, which entered into the original Dawes plan, might furnish a path by which the present experts could approach the question of definite figures without encountering insurmountable obstacles.

The Dawes plan, under which reparations are now being paid, furnishes protection to Germany against excessive transfers. It provides for increases in the present annuities of 2,500,000 marks when the economic situation of Germany will permit. It was this provision which afforded the chance for a trade between the two extremes of the present negotiations.

The subcommittee has proceeded on the theory that the Germans would be willing to abandon their protection under the Dawes transfer clause provided the creditors would give up their rights to demand increased annuities. It was thus found possible to discuss figures in connection with transfers, the latter term becoming only another name for annuities.

When the amount in cash or products that can be transferred by Germany annually is determined, then the experts will need to decide for how many years the reich ought to continue these transfers. When they have that second answer, the reparations question will be settled.

Byrd's Discovery May Be Arbitrated

State Department in Doubt About Status of Land Explorer Claims.

Commander Richard E. Byrd's discovery in the Antarctic region may lead eventually to the creation of an international arbitration commission to settle the question of just how far ownership is established for a nation by the setting up of its flag in uninhabited country.

This was indicated yesterday following the announcement that Commander Byrd last Monday morning had discovered territory in the Antarctic for the United States.

Records in the State Department left the question as to whether the discovery was to the effect that discovery such as Commander Byrd's establishes a claim for his nation but not a permanent right to the country.

Duke Estate Wins Reversal Of $8,000,000 Jury Verdict

Effort by Former Partner to Get Triple Damages in Alleged Broken Aluminum Compact Results in Loss of Original Court Award.

Philadelphia, Feb. 21 (N.Y.W.S.).—The United States District Court of Appeals here today set aside the $8,000,000 judgment obtained against the estate of the late James B. Duke, tobacco king, by George D. Haskell, of Braintree, Mass., and decided the case in favor of the defendants.

In obtaining the judgment in the United States District Court at Newark, N. J., Haskell charged that Duke broke a partnership contract with him and sold out to the Aluminum Company of America for $25,000,000.

Judge Joseph Buffington, presiding member of the survey in writing the court's decision, ruled that Haskell had failed to establish a contract or agreement with Duke for the development of an aluminum enterprise along the Saguenay River in Canada. His decision, acquiesced in by Judges Victor B. Wool-

NEW ROOM CLEAN-UP STARTED IN CHICAGO

Systematic Search Is Ordered to Uncover Hide-Outs of Gangsters.

MASSACRE CLEWS FAIL

Chicago, Feb. 21 (A.P.).—A systematic search of all Chicago, including the entering of both private and public premises, for liquor law violators, was ordered today by William F. Russell, commissioner of police, in his fight to enforce prohibition here.

The commissioner who charged the St. Valentine's Day massacre of seven members of the Moran gang was a result of liquor running and prohibition enforcement. The search of the entire city with particular attention paid to all buildings fronting on alleys, such as garages, barns and sheds.

No progress was made, however, in solving the massacre, not even a new theory as to how the slaughter was evolved. Two weeks since the Moran gangsters were slain the air has been thick with theories of who the slayers were, but no real clews have been up-

Promises "Tighter" Town.

The entering of homes is not contemplated, the commissioner explained, except in cases where the police have evidence that they are being used as other liquor-law violations occur there, in which cases evidence is to be obtained and search warrants issued. The order, the most drastic issued here since prohibition became effective, was described by the commissioner as a promise to "clamp down the lid and keep it clamped down."

He asked citizens not to be unduly alarmed over the Moran gang killing, explaining that the killing of one bunch of hoodlums by another, and said that crime recently had been greatly reduced here. He added "the town is tighter today than it has ever been, but this is nothing to what it is going to be."

Stolen Boy Reported Seen in Mojave Desert

Los Angeles, Feb. 21 (United Press).—One hundred mounted men took the trail northward from Quail Springs, on the Mojave Desert late today to search for Richard Grant, 11-year-old Los Angeles boy, and Harry Palmer, his alleged abductor. They were tracing a tip from James Samuelson, a "desert rat," who said he saw the pair 15 miles northwest of Quail Springs 24 hours ago.

Samuelson said he attempted to talk with the man, but he hurried away, dragging the boy by the hand. The two answered descriptions of the missing pair, Samuelson said. Palmer appeared as "Dickie" Grant's home last December to take the boy to a purported party. They have not been seen since.

DOCTOR SENTENCED IN DEATH OF GIRL

Otto Fisher Given Maximum, Ten Years, for an Illegal Operation on Virginian.

Keyser, W. Va., Feb. 21 (A.P.).—A sentence of ten years in the West Virginia Penitentiary, the maximum set by law for the offense, was imposed today on Dr. Otto Fisher, convicted in December of performing an illegal operation on Miss Lonnie Muriel Beckone, of Harrisonburg, Va., who died in his office here.

Judge A. J. Ray pronounced sentence after refusing Dr. Fisher's motion for a new trial. In reading his decision, Judge Valentine referred to Miss Luella Wetzel, office nurse for the physician, as an accessory, declaring her affidavits with the new trial motion were misleading, and saying of Dr. Fisher:

"I consider that the jury has properly found you guilty and I consider that all of the circumstances point conclusively to your guilt. I consider that one of the reasons you came to Keyser from Harrisonburg, your former place of practice, was to establish an illegitimate practice and that your bringing a woman with whom you were living in adultery to this place was not doing a proper and legitimate medical practice."

Charles H. Hammer, of Harrisonburg, Va., and Richard W. Keyser, of Keyser, Dr. Fisher's counsel, asked the court to set the minimum penalty of three years.

REELS IN SHANTUNG BATTLE FOR CHEFOO

Echo of Heavy Guns Heard in City; Nationalists Send Aid to Defenders.

FENG ALSO MASSES ARMY

Chefoo, Friday, Feb. 22 (A.P.).—Nationalist forces clashed with anti-Nationalist forces this morning 15 miles west of Chefoo, precipitating the first battle of the new Shantung uprising.

The echoing boom of the heavy guns could be heard plainly here. The commander of the Third Division of Nationalist troops, defending the city, was brought here wounded soon after the battle started. The Nationalists are putting forth vigorous efforts to organize their defense. They are receiving additional arms and have commandeered 90,000 bags of flour.

Government Moves SWIFT.

Shanghai, Feb. 21 (A.P.).—The Chinese government today moved swiftly and energetically to suppress an uprising in the province of Shantung, the first real test of China's unity since the Nationalists came into power at Nanking.

Three thousand soldiers of the former Peking regime, recently incorporated into the Nationalist army, formed the nucleus of a movement seeking to establish an independent zone from the north coast province and coincident with this development the movements of two powerful military figures, Gen. Feng Peng-Huang, the overlord of Honan, and Gen. Chang Tsung-Chang, deposed dictator of Shantung, are arousing anxiety.

Gen. Feng, known as the "Christian general," is reported to be massing 30,000 troops in western Shantung. It is presumed in some well-informed quarters here that his purpose has been to seize Shantung in the event of its evacuation by the Japanese.

This report has inspired myriad rumors that Gen. Feng intends to sever all allegiance with the Nanking government and to establish himself independently in Shantung after ousting both the Nationalists and revolutionaries.

Need of U. S. Ship Seen.

Embassies of Gen. Chang are reported to have arrived at Chefoo and have sought in vain to undermine the loyalty of the Nationalist commander. The American consul at Chefoo, Leroy Weber, informed the United States government that the say rebel ranks thus far consisted of both regular troops and brigands. He said that he was advancing on Chefoo apparently with the intention of looting. He saw no evidence of antiforeign activity, he said, but felt that naval presence would become necessary.

Several British and Japanese warships are lying in the harbor at Chefoo, but at present no unit of the American fleet is actively organizing forces to the American light cruiser Trenton, which Admiral Bristol ordered from Manila today, is expected to arrive at Chefoo next Tuesday.

Gen. Chang Tsung-Chang is now thought to be in control of Lungkow, Tengchow and Weihaiwei. He is said to be actively organizing forces to come place to hide their stocks in case the former war lord of Shantung is successful. Dispatches through foreign channels report that Gen. Chang accompanied by an imposing staff of 1,000 men, had been seen at Chefoo, and that his intention of attempting to overthrow the Nationalists, with the hope of reestablishing the old northern regime which had its headquarters in Peking under the late Marshal Chang Tso-Lin.

Battle Creek, Mich., Feb. 21 (A.P.).—Conscience may send Clady North, 49, to prison for the rest of his life.

North returned here recently from Milwaukee to face a charge of having stolen $50 from a former employer at Jackson, Mich. He said he was impelled to do so by conscience. Jackson informed authorities here that he has been convicted three times previously of felonies and conviction of another will make him liable to life imprisonment under the habitual criminal law.

North's employer said he would not testify against him but attaches of the prosecutor's office said today he would be tried on the strength of other information.

(Associated Press.)

The Luca bill to authorize $11,480,000 to be expended by the Veterans' Bureau for additional hospitals for World War veterans was approved yesterday by the House World War Veterans committee.

BANDITS OVERWHELMED IN $10,000 BANK RAID

"Noses in Dust!" Cry Robbers as They Loot Institution at Atlanta.

FLEE IN BATTERED CAR

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 21 (A.P.).—Three husky men, armed with a machine gun and automatic pistols, took charge of a branch bank for five minutes in the presence of fifteen employees and patrons today, and fled with about $10,000 in a battered old touring car.

Varying accounts of the midday holdup at Fifth and Peachtree streets, a community center, led police to believe that the robbery was the work of petty criminals imitating more metropolitan gangsters. J. A. Walton, cashier of the Citizens & Southern Bank, whose branch was held up, voiced the opinion of bank officials, however, that gangsters, forced from their lairs by police drives in Chicago and other cities, executed the daring coup.

Typical gangster equipment and methods were in evidence as the trio appeared at exactly 1 p. m. and ordered the fifteen persons present to "put up their hands and march to the rear."

All were forced to lie with their "noses in the dust" as the bandit with the machine gun put it, while the others entered the vault and scooped up all currency in sight. A secret drawer and a hidden vault saved $20,000 from the robbers.

Ordering their victims to lie still "for a long time," the three men walked normally into the street and climbed into a rickety old car parked about a half a block away and driven by a fourth confederate.

Traffic Officer P. W. DeFoor, on duty at the Tenth street intersection, was notified immediately by the bank patrons who swarmed to the street, and gave chase on foot.

Two women were among the patrons and one of them, Mrs. F. B. DeFord, an Atlanta society matron, was taken to her home in a hysterical condition. Officials declined to estimate the bank's loss until an audit was completed, but they believed about $10,000 was missing.

Immigration Head Hits "Scare" Tales

Says "Bootlegged" Aliens Are Fewer Every Year; Encouragement Decried.

(Associated Press.)

Unlawful entry into the United States is becoming less of a factor each year and the deportation of those who have been "bootlegged" through the border is becoming more rapid, in the opinion of Harry E. Hull, commissioner general of Immigration.

Speaking before the House Committee on Immigration and Naturalization (Republican), Iowa, yesterday, Commissioner Hull deplored recent newspaper articles in which startling statements as to the numbers of aliens unlawfully entering and the allegations of failure to deport them after their arrival was made.

"We of the service are often truly appalled at the variety and number of false statements concerning immigration matters," the commissioner general wrote. Articles of this character, he added, "are not only unfair to the service as a whole, but what is infinitely worse encourage many ignorant misguided aliens to embark upon an unwise and dangerous venture fated ultimately to end in tragedy."

Air School Ousts Boy For Stunts With Plane

Chicago, Feb. 21 (U.P.).—Joseph Lorenz, 18, Reading, Pa., was expelled from school today for disobeying his teachers and went stunting in the air, cutting capers which his instructors had forbidden a student to attempt.

His case was considered by authorities of the Aviation and Transport Training School and the dismissal order followed.

BECKERS

Store Open Today Until One P. M.

ENTERING a Pullman dressing room with a Duplex Case, the woman traveler has only to open its top compartment and a complete dressing table is hers to command. The lower section of case, for overnight attire, jewels and accessories, has its own set of locks and need not be disturbed.

New models in black cobra and black or tan lizard grain cowhide, executed the daring coup.

Typical gangster equipment and methods were in evidence as the trio appeared at exactly 1 p. m. and ordered the fifteen persons present to "put up their hands and march to the rear."

All were forced to lie with their "noses in the dust" as the bandit with the machine gun put it, while the others entered the vault and scooped up all currency in sight. A secret drawer and a hidden vault saved $20,000 from the robbers.

Ordering their victims to lie still "for a long time," the three men walked normally into the street and climbed into a rickety old car parked about a half a block away and driven by a fourth confederate.

Traffic Officer P. W. DeFoor, on duty at the Tenth street intersection, was notified immediately by the bank patrons who swarmed to the street, and gave chase on foot.

Two women were among the patrons and one of them, Mrs. F. B. DeFord, an Atlanta society matron, was taken to her home in a hysterical condition. Officials declined to estimate the bank's loss until an audit was completed, but they believed about $10,000 was missing.

Unlawful entry into the United States is becoming less of a factor each year and the deportation of those who have been "bootlegged" through the border is becoming more rapid, in the opinion of Harry E. Hull, commissioner general of Immigration.

Speaking before the House Committee on Immigration and Naturalization (Republican), Iowa, yesterday, Commissioner Hull deplored recent newspaper articles in which startling statements as to the numbers of aliens unlawfully entering and the allegations of failure to deport them after their arrival was made.

"We of the service are often truly appalled at the variety and number of false statements concerning immigration matters," the commissioner general wrote. Articles of this character, he added, "are not only unfair to the service as a whole, but what is infinitely worse encourage many ignorant misguided aliens to embark upon an unwise and dangerous venture fated ultimately to end in tragedy."

KWKH OWNER HITS RADIO WAVE CLAIM

Henderson Tells Commission Attempt to Obtain His Length Is "Hijacking."

APPLAUDED AT HEARING

(Associated Press.)
W. K. Henderson, owner of radio station KWKH, at Shreveport, La., opposing the application of station KVOO, of Tulsa, Okla., for the 850-kilocycle frequency, his station has been allocated, yesterday presented the Radio Commission with 163,231 affidavits indorsing his station and its programs.

Henderson, famous for his greeting of "Hello World! Doggone It! Shreveport on the Air!" testified after Senator Russell (Democrat), Louisiana, and a number of the Louisiana delegation in the House had declared that the station was very popular in the South and in their opinion its wave length should not be changed.

Calls Claim "Hijacking."
The Shreveport broadcaster, who has been conducting a vigorous campaign over his station against the application of KVOO, said he had announced over his station and was "perfectly willing to state to the commission that the effort of KVOO to get Louisiana's wave was a contemplated piece of hijacking."

His demonstration of how he opened his programs with his famous announcement, drew a round of applause from the large crowd attending the hearing.

On cross-examination Henderson said he had applied for certain chain programs and had been turned down, but that he did not care, as "I believe the programs I now give are far superior to the ones being sent out over the chains."

He declared that his programs consisted principally of phonograph records and that his station was widely known for the fine records played by it.

Repeats Teapot Dome Comment.
Henderson denied ever having connected William G. Skelly, the owner of the Tulsa station, with the Teapot Dome oil scandal. On cross-examination he testified he had said that "the Teapot Dome oil scandal started up there in Tulsa, that the Teapot oil gang would steal everything, that's not nailed down, that they stole all the oil and now they are trying to steal the air."

Skelly, who testified Wednesday that he owned the stock of the company operating the Tulsa station, said the Skelly Oil Co., of which he is president, had no connection with the broadcasting station.

The affidavits presented by Henderson were brought in and placed on the platform of the hearing room in three packing cases. Henderson said to the commission as two truck drivers heaved the boxes on the floor that he "wanted to congratulate the commission on being the distinguished body before which the greatest number of affidavits ever presented to a governmental body has come."

Blood-Stained Garb In Home of Suspect

Clothes Identified as Property of Rafe King, Accused of Wife's Death.

YORK, N. C., Feb. 21 (A.P.)—A suit of blood-spotted clothing, identified as belonging to Rafe King, charged with the murder of his wife, was discovered last yesterday hidden above the porch of the King home.

The accused man is now at the home of his parents in Shelby, N. C., having been released on $3,000 bond. Mrs. King's body was found in an outhouse near the King home on January 25. She was at first thought to have committed suicide, but after investigation King was arrested.

The clothing was found by Police Chief J. Frank Faulkner, of York. Clyde Eagan, of Charlotte, brother-in-law of Mrs. King, identified the clothes as belonging to King. Officers found the initials "R. F. K." on the coat lining.

Two York County rural policemen, had been dispatched to Shelby and were prepared to arrest King if Justice Wattle acted favorably on the request of Solicitor J. L. Glenn.

Inquest in Constable's Death Again Deferred

Special to The Washington Post.
Martinsburg, W. Va., Feb. 21.—The coroner's inquest into the death Monday of Constable M. M. Widmyer, 30 years old, was postponed today until next Monday. It is the second postponement. The first was to permit expected witnesses to attend the funeral of Widmyer Wednesday afternoon. The second was because of illness of Assistant Prosecuting Attorney C. N. Campbell, who had made preliminary examinations in the case.

Twenty witnesses are to be examined, including Dokotah White, divorced, to whom Widmyer was attentive and in whose room he was found dead Monday morning, his pistol by his side. Members of the White household also will be examined. No arrests have been made.

The company announced today the money will be turned over to former Judge L. S. Schwenk, of Fairmont, who was on the Marion County Criminal Court bench when the bomb plotters were tried, and who will decide who is to share in the reward. All the men connected with the plot are now serving terms in the State Penitentiary at Moundsville.

4 POSTS ARE STILL VACANT IN CABINET HOOVER FORMS

consider a Cabinet post for at least a year. Of course, Henry L. Stimson bobbed up subsequently as the Secretary of State, so Mr. Robinson was again associated with the Treasury post, this time at the end of two years, when Mr. Mellon retired.

Of all the talk about the Californian, there was no suggestion that his real mission was to find Mr. Hoover a Secretary of Labor. His experience with reparations suggested his qualifications for Secretary of State and his banking connections were taken as qualifying him for the Treasury. Just what it is that qualifies him as a searcher for Secretaries of Labor is not known.

It may or may not be significant that after Mr. Hoover devoted all of the forenoon to him yesterday, Mr. Mellon was in for an hour's serious chat.

Food for Speculation.
It is almost inconceivable that Mr. Mellon may not remain as Secretary of Treasury after all. Neither is likely that his conference with Mr. Hoover yesterday following the longer conference which Mr. Hoover had with Mr. Robinson had to do with the Californian succeeding him at the end of two years.

It may be that the visits of the two men had no relation to each other, that Mr. Robinson was really talking about Labor Secretary available, but the circumstances may afford food for speculation these panicky Cabinet picking and seeking days. A few weeks ago Col. W. J. Donovan was believed to be just as firmly set in the Cabinet picture as Mr. Mellon is now.

Inasmuch as Mr. Robinson is also a lawyer, it could be that Mr. Hoover may turn to him for an Attorney General, too.

In so far as the Secretary of Agriculture is concerned, Mr. Hoover had three available with him yesterday. They could just as well have been called in to discuss farm relief, but they are the Cabinet's available nevertheless.

Mr. Hoover was supposed to have arrived at his definite farm program some time ago. The visitors were Representative Walter Newton, of Minnesota; Carl Vrooman, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture under Wilson, and Eugene Meyer, head of the War Finance Corporation. The unavailable today to Mr. Vrooman is that he is a Democrat, or.

Both Meyer and Newton fit very well into the Cabinet picture, except that.

Chilled Hoover Reporters Precipitate Senate Banter

Harrison's Commiseration for Correspondents Standing in Snow at S Street Home Brings Watson to Defense of President-elect.

(Associated Press.)
An expression of regret by Senator Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, for the newspaper men forced to stand in the snow outside the residence of Herbert Hoover, opened a round of political play in the Senate yesterday with Senator Watson, of Indiana, the prospective new Republican leader enrolling himself behind the cause of the President-elect.

"If it had not been for these gentlemen, forced as they were to remain outside on the streets shivering and freezing in a foot of snow," declared Harrison, "they perhaps would not have been able to tell the country that my good friend from Indiana, Senator Watson, the next leader in this body of the majority party, had renewed his friendship with the President-elect."

This drew Senator Watson to his feet and the Indiana was subjected to some good-natured heckling as he took up the cause of Mr. Hoover. He was one of Hoover's outstanding foes in the Republican presidential campaign last year.

Watson said he didn't know about the newspaper men standing in the snow. He took the opportunity to explain that Mr. Hoover had returned to Washington to seek counsel for his new duties and he declared the President-elect was the "best-equipped man in his knowledge" for the Presidency.

Harrison provoked laughter with a suggestion that Mr. Hoover at least with the newspaper men with kindling wood, warm themselves as they awaited outside his residence watching for news.

He recalled that Mr. Hoover had asked $200,000 for enlarging the White House executive office and he presumed this was "to take care of three secretaries for whom he has asked."

Watson told Harrison that after the next administration comes in that it will "make things so warm for my friend from Mississippi that there won't be any snow for any one to stand in."

This prompted Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, to ask if Mr. Hoover was going to "consign the senator from Mississippi to the lower regions." With a smile, Senator Watson replied that "I am reminded that water always seeks its own level."

Senator Harrison, in referring to the necessity for the newspaper men to stand outside the Hoover residence, declared that Mr. Hoover "returned to Washington as a real, human character and the impression went out that he would look after the press boys and the office seekers."

"He may be a cloistered gentleman," continued Harrison, "who thinks the country is not interested in what goes on, but the country is interested. Some of them went to know who the new Attorney General is going to be, and certainly the prohibitionists and the bootleggers want to know. If he appoints Senator Borah, it will be the best choice he can make during his administration."

Harrison interrupted Watson to ask if Mr. Hoover "will make it hotter for me than he has for these Cabinet members of the Coolidge administration," but the Indiana said he didn't know anything about the Cabinet.

DUAL NAVAL POLICY CHARGED TO LONDON

Chairman Britten Declares Chamberlain Guilty of Inconsistency.

SEA CONTROL "SOLE AIM"

(Associated Press.)

Chairman Britten of the House naval committee, yesterday accused Great Britain of having one naval policy for England and another for consumption in the United States. Each policy, he declared, had British control of the seas as its goal.

The Illinois member set forth his views in a statement in which he said that the announcement by Sir Austin Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, that Great Britain had no intention of calling a new disarmament conference, was in "complete discord" with Chamberlain's approval of the announcement by Sir Esme Howard, the British Ambassador to the United States, that his country shortly would call a naval limitation conference.

Britten made public a letter from Commander J. M. Kenworthy, a member of the British Parliament, which asked the chairman to inform his friends that "on this side, of all parties who favor an informal conference, have no desire to interfere with or to interrupt the peace of the world and the security of the British Empire. But for the sake of our respective taxpayers we want this form of guarantee and our own guarantee to be as small and as cheap as possible."

Personally, Kenworthy wrote, "I agree with the former prime minister of Australia, Mr. Hughes, in his declaration that every additional American warship is an added guarantee for the peace of the world and the security of the British Empire. But for the sake of our respective taxpayers we want this form of guarantee and our own guarantee to be as small and as cheap as possible."

NAVY FILIBUSTER BEATEN IN SENATE

It became known that he desired to speak and reports had reached the Senate that he intended to make one of his characteristic speeches twitting the President-elect.

Outwitted by Swanson, a quorum call preceded Harrison's speech and at this point Senator Swanson outwitted the filibusterers after the motion had been renewed to make the Navy bill the unfinished business. He called for the yeas and nays immediately after the motion and Senator Borah had answered to his name on the roll call before Senator Black came rushing into the chamber to inquire, "What are we voting on?"

The victory for the Navy bill seemed to hasten the complete collapse of the filibuster. Senator Norris later compelled the bill to be read and began a speech on it, but it was apparent that the fight was over.

There was, however, some surprise when Senator Swanson's unanimous consent request to limit debate at 5 today met with no objection. This means a vote today or tomorrow.

HOUSE GROUP PLANS FARM BILL HEARINGS

Agriculture Committee to Hear Witnesses at Close of Short Session.

MAY FINISH IN 2 WEEKS

(Associated Press.)

The first step was made yesterday toward setting the House agriculture committee to work upon a farm relief bill to carry out the promises of the Republicans during the last campaign.

With the House ways and means committee already far along in its work upon the other farm relief proposal, tariff revision, a provision was incorporated in the second deficiency bill reported to the House yesterday to permit the agriculture committee to conduct hearings between the end of the short session and the opening of the projected special session in April.

At the hearings witnesses will be heard upon the various phases that will enter into a new farm bill and after they are finished the committee will draft the measure upon which Congress will act.

Unlike the tariff hearings, those of the agriculture committee are not expected to be long and drawn out. Chairman Haugen of the committee said he thought it could finish its work within two weeks and that a date for its commencement would be fixed at a meeting to be held before the adjournment of the short session, probably March 2 or 3.

Enactment of a farm relief measure was one of the campaign promises of President-elect Hoover and is one of the two subjects to be considered at the special session. Tariff revision, the other subject to be taken up, was the other means of bringing about improvement in the farm situation recommended by the incoming President.

The authorization of the committee which the agriculture committee will meet carries permission for it to send subcommittees to any section of the country that may be necessary, it expects to have its witnesses come to Washington, where the full committee will work.

The chairman indicated that the thrice-vetted McNary-Haugen bill carrying the equalization fee proposal had been definitely discarded and that the committee would listen with an open ear to any suggestions that President-elect Hoover might send to it.

SENATE FILIBUSTERS.

Three filibusters were threatened in the Senate yesterday morning, but one little filibuster blew up and then there were two. The obstructionists who tried to defeat the naval appropriation bill were forced to a vote by the skillful tactics of Senator Swanson and they could muster only five votes. The passage of the bill, carrying an appropriation for beginning construction of the new cruisers, now seems assured.

The filibusters that now are threatened relate to the proposed $24,000,000 appropriation for prohibition enforcement and to the bill containing a provision authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to condemn private land in national parks. Senator Glass has given notice that he will attempt to defeat the deficiency bill unless there is included in it the $24,000,000 which the Executive does not want and will not ask for. The bill as reported to the House yesterday omits this item, leaving the question to be thrashed out otherwise. As the bill is vitally important, it may be taken for granted that a strong majority will try to break up the filibuster that is impending.

Senator Walsh, of Montana, has broadly intimated that the bill dealing with national parks will meet with a filibuster. As his interest in this bill is personal, however, it remains to be seen whether other senators will join him in obstructing the bill.

The sentiment of the country is pretty well known regarding the proposal to thrust $24,000,000 upon the Executive for the purpose of enforcing the prohibition law. It is almost universally recognized that this proposal is made by senators and members who hope to make political capital among the dregs of the country, and who do not hesitate to misappropriate public money to gain their ends. President Coolidge has agreed that an additional $2,500,000 might be usefully expended in connection with enforcement, and if Congress is really anxious to conserve public money while helping to enforce the law it will kill the $24,000,000 item and appropriate $2,500,000.

THE POLISH MINISTER.

Official and social Washington regret the departure of the Minister of Poland, Mr. Jan Ciechanowski, and his charming family. For three years the Polish Minister has labored here in behalf of his country, during which time he has gained a high place in the Diplomatic Corps and contributed greatly to the better understanding of Poland on the part of Americans. In the difficult negotiations culminating in the stabilization of Polish currency Minister Ciechanowski was especially successful in promoting his country's interest, because of the confidence reposed in him by the American financial world.

Relations between the United States and the Polish Republic are on a happy footing, largely through the efforts of the retiring Minister. He carries with him the best wishes and warm personal regards of the people of Washington.

FEDERAL PAY ADJUSTMENT.

The House committee on appropriations, by direct action in the second deficiency bill, proposes to wipe out the pay inequalities created by Comptroller General McCarl's decision and to place in its full vigor the Welch act, increasing the salaries of Government employees in lower grades. The bill lops off $2,000,000 of excess salaries granted by Mr. McCarl and appropriates $17,299,616 granted by the Welch act.

If this bill should be passed as it stands, the confusion caused by Mr. McCarl's decision will be eliminated and a small degree of relief will be given to underpaid Government employees. It is an ingenious and effective method of untangling a tangle that has worked hardship upon thousands of employees whom Congress intended to relieve.

The Welch act was approved by Congress. The pending bill calls for no more money than Congress endeavored last year to give to the employees of the Government. It should be approved.

CHILE AND PERU AGREE.

The announcement of a settlement of the Tacna-Arica question is gratifying to the friends of Peru and Chile. The settlement is broadly described as an allotment of the province of Arica to Chile and the province of Tacna to Peru. This is perhaps the best adjustment that could be made of the long-standing dispute at this late date, long after the time when a plebiscite would have been practicable.

By taking up direct negotiations and settling their differences amicably, Chile and Peru have furnished the best possible example to their neighbors, Bolivia and Paraguay, whose dispute over the Gran Chaco seems to be a long way from settlement. It is not more difficult, however, than the Tacna-Arica dispute, which aroused the deepest national feelings in both Peru and Chile. If those nations have found it possible to reach an agreement after 40 years of disagreement, surely there is hope that Paraguay and Bolivia will discover a pacific method of delimiting their frontiers.

The President of the United States is relieved of an embarrassing problem by the action of Chile and Peru. President Harding, and later President Coolidge, was charged with delicate duties as arbitrator under the protocol which contemplated the holding of a plebiscite should be held; but it became apparent that all of Gen. Pershing's efforts would be in vain when he began his work as president of the plebiscitary commission. Although he labored until his health broke down, the conditions precedent to a fair and free vote could not be brought about, and finally his successor, Gen. Lassiter, reported in behalf of the commission that a plebiscite was impracticable. Then the good offices of the United States were employed, through Secretary Kellogg, to bring about an agreement. Mr. Kellogg succeeded in inducing the two governments to resume diplomatic relations, and thus the way was paved for an amicable agreement by direct negotiation.

With the elimination of this vexed question there is reason to believe that the commercial relations between Peru and Chile will rapidly expand, to their mutual benefit, and that their agreement will have a powerful influence in reconciling Bolivia and Paraguay. Thus the peace of South America is promoted, with corresponding commercial and cultural benefits.

ON THE VIRGINIA SIDE.

A year or so ago a local packing company proposed to locate an abattoir in Arlington County, not far from the Virginia end of Highway Bridge. So violent were the protests, however, that the company abandoned its plans. Lately the project has been revived, and Arlington County again is making violent protest.

Indispensable as an abattoir may be, the fact remains that it is not desirable in a residential or public recreational area. The location chosen by the local packing company falls in both categories. Although that part of Arlington County lying adjacent to the Virginia abutment of Highway Bridge is developed commercially at the present time, plans have been made whereby it will be zoned in keeping with the park and highway development of the National Capital. When this has been done, all business activities in the area will be forced to find other locations.

An abattoir to provide Washington with fresh meats should be located conveniently. Undue hardship should not be placed upon its proprietors by forcing them to move far out in the country. A convenient site can be found, however, that does not possess the disadvantages, from the standpoint of the community, of the site now under consideration. The packing company would do well to abandon its effort to locate the abattoir in such close proximity to a principal gateway to Washington, immediately across the river from Potomac Park, and should try to find another convenient location where slaughtering and packing can be carried on without interfering with the development of the Capital.

NEW LAND UNDER THE FLAG.

Commander Byrd and his crew are making history in the Antarctic. The importance of which time alone can tell. The scientific aspect of his expedition has been uppermost in the minds of those who have listened to or read his radio communications, but now that he has begun claiming land for the United States there is new interest in his work. His latest flights resulted in discovery of two new mountain ranges, one in the Ross Dependency, claimed by the British, and another beyond the British claim, which is described as a "land of limitless possibilities lying between Ross Sea and Graham Land." This new tract has been claimed for this country and appropriately named Marie Byrd Land, after the wife of the explorer.

The expedition has now reconnoitered approximately 40,000 square miles of the Antarctic with the aid of airplanes. Much of this has been sketched or mapped by aerocameras. However, winter is now closing in on the party, and extensive flights will have to be given up until next season. Commander Byrd will then have even a better opportunity to unfold the secrets of this polar region, and he expects to chart an area of land much greater in extent than the known territory of the Ross Dependency.

Many explorers since Amundsen have added to the knowledge of the world regarding the Antarctic, but never before has there been an expedition carried out on such a thorough scientific basis. The great southern continent will no longer be a land of mystery, and it may become a territory of great value. When the advancement of science in the last 100 years is considered, it is unwise to underestimate the value of the territory Commander Byrd is placing under the flag of the United States. The fact that he is rendering a great service to his country and to science all over the world can not be doubted.

TRADE-MARK PROTECTION.

The Pan-American trade-mark conference, which has been in session here for ten days, concluded its work Wednesday with the signing of a convention which is designed to extend legal protection to trade-marks and commercial names in all the nations of this hemisphere.

The delegates also signed a protocol which provides for establishment at Havana of an inter-American trade-mark bureau for registration of all trade-marks for which international protection is sought.

The delegates were well pleased with the results of the conference. Dr. L. S. Rowe, Director General of the Pan-American Union, predicts that the machinery set up by the convention will not only adequately protect trade-marks throughout the two continents, but will go a long way toward elimination of unfair competition. In offering his congratulations Secretary of State Kellogg declared that the conference has "made a valuable contribution to that spirit of cooperation between the nations of America which constitutes the very essence of Americanism."

When the difficulties that confronted the conference are taken into account, it is apparent that congratulations are due to the delegates. They had to effect a conciliation of the English common law which governs trade-mark rights in the United States, with the corresponding provisions of the Latin-American system of jurisprudence based on the Roman code. Likewise the differences of fiscal and administrative methods in nineteen different nations had to be dealt with. Yet a treaty, which does not conflict with the rights or interests of any of the signatory nations, is reported to have been worked out.

Increased trade and better commercial relations should result from the conference. The treaty must now be approved by the different governments which sent delegates to the conference, but if the same spirit of cooperation as characterized the sessions in Washington is manifest toward the agreement, there will be little question as to its final approval. It will be to the interest of all if the inter-American trade-mark bureau can be put in operation at an early date.

Wouldn't it be awful if Gov. Reed of Kansas should refuse to accept Charlie Curtis' resignation?

Firemen of Waterloo, Iowa, bored with inactivity, plan to organize a saxophone band. Look out for an outbreak of incendiarism in Waterloo.

The extra session, it is rumored, will be convened April 22. Looking back over the record of farm relief it would seem that April 1 might be a better date.

Sale of Al Smith's book has brought in a total of $125,000 to the relief of the Democratic campaign deficit. Things are picking up, with a mere $1,372,000 yet to raise.

On Tuesday the weather man said no more snow was to be expected. He said nothing, however, about the light frost that was on the ground when Washington awakened Thursday.

THE FLIVVER AIRPLANE

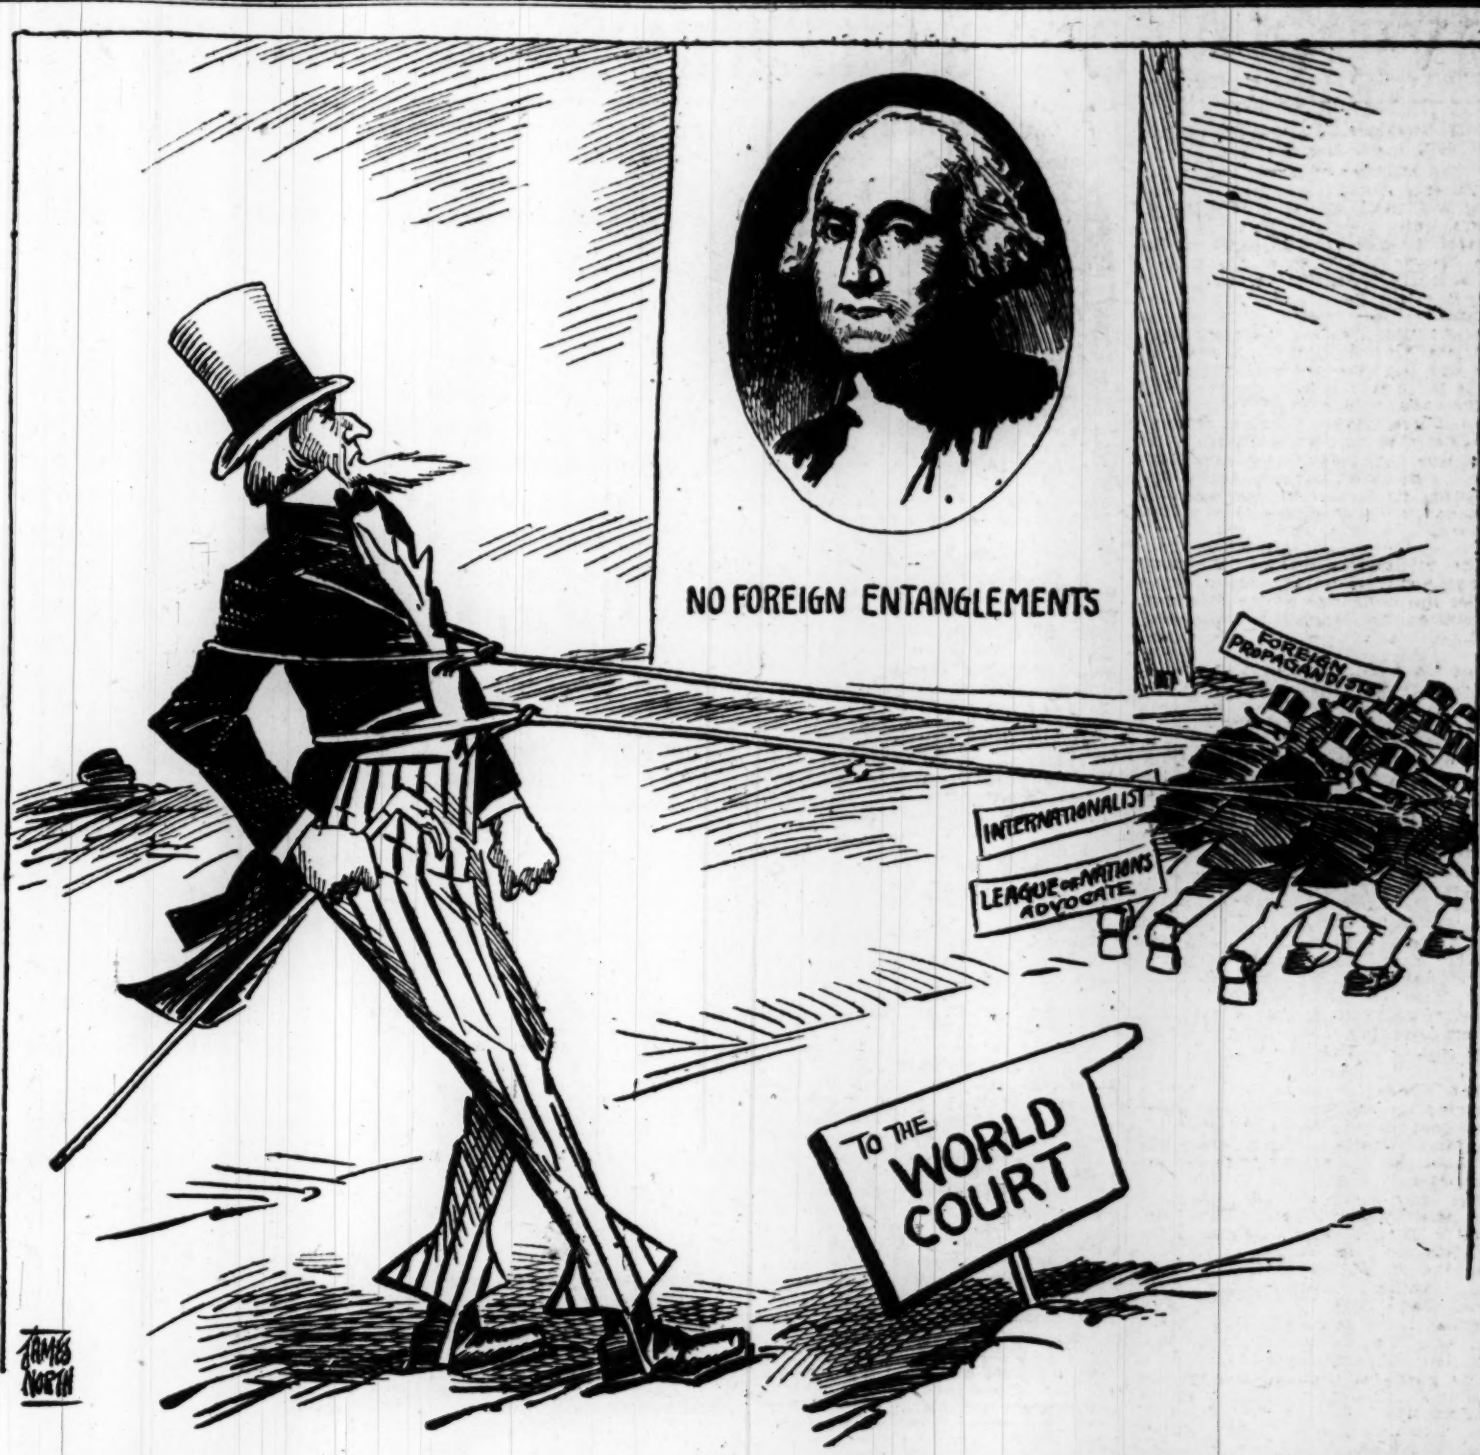

By ROGER W. BABSON

From the Forum.

Many of the great inventions have first appeared in a crude form. To hear the early phonographs, you had to stick tubes in your ears. The horn was the key that unlocked the phonograph's greatness. Horseless carriages were an old invention. The key that opened the future of the automobile was the invention of pneumatic tires. The key for radio was the invention that made it possible to broadcast something more than code. These are examples of master keys. Most industries have minor keys. For instance, to the automobile, the differential gear was a key—but a mere differential gear would not have brought greatness to the horseless carriage without pneumatic tires. Disk records were a key for the phonograph—but disk records alone would not have popularized a talking machine that had to be plugged into the ears with tubes. The socket-power system has improved radio reception, but the utmost perfection of this system would not have sold millions of receiving sets if all they broadcast was "dit-dit-dah-dit." The master key of an industry is an invention which makes the industry serve the millions instead of the millionaires.

In its present state, I look upon the aircraft industry as somewhat like the telegraph and cable industries. They are important, even indispensable. They are not universal. Millions would not sit up all hours of the night listening to Morse code. I can not imagine a family buying a telegraph instrument on installment. Before the aircraft industry can hope to come into the same class as the automobile industry, it must find a master key. Without such a revolutionary invention, it is vain to expect a true flivver airplane. The nature of the master invention is easy to forecast. In some way it must do the job of a helicopter. The plane must be able to rise straight up, hover at a given spot, make a slow vertical descent—and possibly perform as a parachute when the power is cut off. Without such an invention, it is futile to figure on one airplane for every five people in the United States. The automobile itself would still be a relatively unimportant industry if you had to journey to a municipal airport every time you needed your car, and if you couldn't drive it under 50 miles an hour.

Therefore, in attempting to give blueprints of the future, all my conclusions are based on the assumption that there will presently be developed a helicopter or its equivalent. This will be the master key. Other key inventions may be as follows. The planes or blades can be folded up as a grasshopper folds its wings. A pontoon construction will permit landing and locomotion on water or on snow. The landing wheels may be power driven, so that the machine can be operated on the road like an automobile. For example, after flying to a city, it will be possible to land outside its limits and then use the plane as an automobile. Fundamentally this is the flivver airplane which I visualize. Granting the possibility of such a design, we can foresee an industry of giant size. Moreover, it will have profound effects upon human life, equal to or even greater than the vast changes which can be traced to the automobile industry.

A Rooster With Peacock Feathers Is Just a Rooster Looking Silly.

By ROBERT QUILEN

MY DEAR LOUISE: Several years ago, when you were full of a yearning to be grown-up and thought you never would reach sixteen, a magazine editor came to our house for lunch.

Without saying anything about it to me, you had made such preparations as seemed justified by the importance of the occasion and had practiced a company smile.

The full glory of it dawned on me for the first time after we sat down at the table, but I wasn't impressed. It seemed a painful performance, and I thought your lips were chapped.

So far as I know or can remember, that was your only slip-up since doll days—your only effort to "put on"—but from now on you will associate more or less with girls who think pose a kind of social obligation, and I want to tell you a thing or two about it.

Do you remember the kid whose manners I praised so much a few years ago? She had the poise of a social leader and the frank and casual self-assurance peculiar to the well-bred, and I thought her a little wonder—the first time I saw her.

But she turned out to be a fake—just a well-schooled little actress with the swell-bred and no sincerity at all—and I wasn't surprised when you told me the other day that the boys try to dodge her at parties.

They can't get away with it, Honey.

Girls and women who pretend and play-act all the time—in their tone of voice, their smiles, the way they roll their eyes, their movements, and everything they say and do—are so obviously "putting on" that nobody is fooled and everybody with good sound sense is disgusted.

I always want to spank them and give them a decent chance. The art of acting consists in being so natural that nobody knows you are acting, but only a few of the great actors ever achieve that perfection. If professional actors can't do it, why do these silly little amateurs think they can?

"Putting on" and making it seem natural is very, very difficult, and failure makes girls seem silly; but an ordinary girl can be natural and thus, by doing nothing at all achieve a charm that will make her popular.

The girls and boys and men and women you like best are the real ones, aren't they? The genuine, sincere ones who don't pretend or seem affected?

Well, other people are just like you. They like that kind, too.

You'll never want for friends if you keep on being yourself and guard against pose and pretense as you would against disease.

This hard-boiled world isn't easy to fool, and the silly ones who try it succeeded only in seeming sillier.

"FATHER OF PANAMA."

If the people of Panama carry out their project of erecting a memorial monument to Theodore Roosevelt they will be paying a debt of gratitude which they surely owe, says the Houston Post-Dispatch. Theodore Roosevelt is assuredly the "father of the republic of Panama." Without the assistance he gave to the secessionists from Colombia, by way of extending to the United States government recognition of the United States, they never would have succeeded in gaining independence for their state. And the prosperity and progress of Panama since it achieved its independence has been due chiefly to the development of the Panama Canal, an American project. Roosevelt has been severely criticized for his policy in dealing with Colombia. That it smacked of imperialism there is no doubt. That he was chiefly interested in securing a right of way for an American canal across the Isthmus of Panama, and only incidentally interested in the Panama nationalist fight for independence, is also true. Restoration of Wakefield.
To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As president of the Wakefield Memorial Association I beg leave to correct a popular misapprehension in regard to Mr. John D. Rockefeller's generous contribution of an equal amount by the historic lands associated with the birthplace of George Washington. Mr. Rockefeller's contribution of $115,000 toward the purchase of this 267 acres of land is contingent upon the contribution of an equal amount by the public by January 7, 1930. Mr. Rockefeller very properly believes that the restoration of Washington's birthplace is a task that should be gladly undertaken by the people of the United States, and that no one person should assume to perform this task. His generosity is gratefully acknowledged by the Wakefield Memorial Association, which now asks the people of the United States to come forward and match his contribution. Any sum, however large or small, will be acceptable and will be promptly acknowledged. The association has the authority of Congress to restore Wakefield, but it must raise the money by popular subscription. MRS. HENRY L. RUST,

Keep Mount Vernon Open on Sundays.
To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Today the Nation's thoughts turn to Wakefield and Mount Vernon, Washington's birthplace and his estate. Wakefield has not yet been fully restored, but the Wakefield Memorial Association has made good progress in the restoration project and it is only a matter of a short time until the birthplace will become accessible. Mount Vernon has been carefully restored. In its commanding position on the shore of the Potomac it is the mecca to which thousands of patriotic pilgrims turn each year. Only residents of Washington are barred to a rather considerable extent, from visiting Mount Vernon.

It is a matter of comment in Washington and by visitors to Washington that so many residents of the Capital have never been to Mount Vernon. The idea has got around that Washingtonians are not conscious of the significance of the Washington estate and that they make no effort to visit it. Mount Vernon, however, is closed on Sunday. For this reason many Washingtonians have found it difficult to make the pilgrimage, and many tourists in Washington are prevented from seeing the place.

If there is reason for Mount Vernon to be closed one day out of seven, a day other than Sunday should be chosen, so that the privilege of viewing the rooms made historically sacred by the occupancy of George Washington may apply alike to residents of Washington and of the States.

CROSLEY 8 tube AC Electric JEWELBOX

A new powerful receiver, employing a tuned antenna circuit, power detector tube and using 17-227 tubes in all sections excepting last audio stage and rectifier. Presenting a new and improved audio system with push-pull amplification and two 171 power tubes in the last stage. Truly called "the world's finest receiver." Its selectivity and sensitivity are amazing.

The quality of reproduction is a real step forward in radio development. Cabinet finished in black and high gloss, lighted in white gold. Price without tubes..... $105

CROSLEY 8 tube AC Electric SHOWCHEST

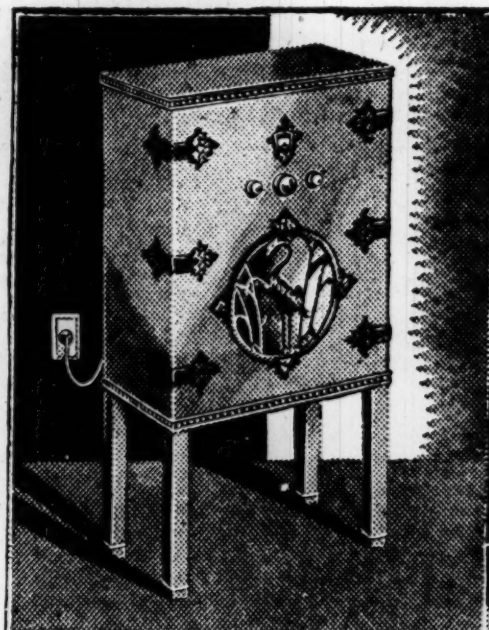

Crosley 8 tube Showbox and electro-magnetic power DYNACONE built in Chinese Chippendale style cabinet—3 color optional. Price without tubes..... $109

CROSLEY 8 tube AC Electric SHOWBOX

As in the Jewelbox—3 stages radio amplification, detector, 3 stages audio with two power tubes in last stage and rectifier pull 150 watts on plate. A splendid sharp-sensitive powerful—a splendid example of Crosley genius in making GOOD radio of little money.

Price without tubes $80

7 Tube GEMCHEST

A smartly designed cabinet of Chinese Chippendale influence in which is built the Crosley Gembox and the Crosley Dynacone. 3 colors—Mandarin red with bronze gold fittings—Nanking green with rose gold—Manchu black with white gold. Receiver contains 3 tubes radio amplification, detector, 2 audio tubes and rectifier—7 in $94 all.

I know good radio when I hear it. My wife does when she sees the price.

That's a fine loud speaker, but you have no idea how terrible it would be if my wife knew it cost but $25.

Haven't you got a fancy box you can put it in? Tell her the body is "Ritzzy" and put a 24-K label on the package. Human nature is gullible. Price determines value in most minds. The real worth of the improved Table model Crosley AC Electric 7-tube GEMBOX at $65 is missed by many because they won't stop, look or listen. It is a power speaker operating radio with features like those in much higher-priced radios—3 stages radio amplification, detector and 2 stages audio plus rectifier tube. It is real VALUE and it's possible because of Crosley's enormous sales. And huge sales come because it gives truly wonderful performance and satisfaction.

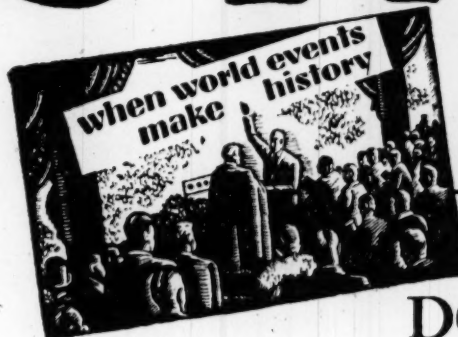

ACElectric 7 tube GEMBOX

Contains latest and best radio refinements—such as shielding—magnetic balancing, both features contributing to unusual selectivity and sensitivity—illuminated dial—power speaker operation—power supply self-contained..... $65

Crosley DYNACONE

Electro-magnetic power speaker of an entirely different principle permitting true reproduction of ALL tones on the audio scale. This new idea places radio owners who are tired of low distortion in their loud speakers..... $25

HAHN BELLE COPIED FROM COPY, CLAIM

WRETCHED, SAYS DEAN

New York, Feb. 21 (A.P.).—Reading of four depositions, made on behalf of the defense six years ago by European experts, occupied today's entire session of the trial of Mrs. Andre Lardoux Hahn's $500,000 suit against Sir Joseph Duveen over the origin of the portrait, "La Belle Peronniere."

The depositions were from Bernard Berenson, Sir Charles Holmes, F. Schmidt-Degener, director general of the Amsterdam Museum, and Roger Fry, now of London, but formerly art curator of the Metropolitan Museum in New York.

All were emphatic in their statements that the Hahn picture was not from the brush of Leonardo da Vinci, and Fry went so far as to say that it was not even a copy of the portrait in the Louvre by the same name, generally accepted as a da Vinci. He stated in his deposition that he believed the Hahn picture to be only copy of a copy. The Hahn picture, he declared, was neither the work of any of da Vinci's pupils nor of his school.

"Even if the Louvre picture did not exist," he stated in the deposition, "all real experts would never have ascribed the Hahn picture to Leonardo."

Sir Charles and Schmidt-Degener, in their depositions, both expressed belief that the Hahn picture was the work of a Flemish painter. Sir Charles based his contention on his observation that "the Flemish school like their ladies a little plumper" than did the Italian school to which da Vinci belonged.

Berenson, who, although he is dean of European art experts, was born in Massachusetts, declared in his deposition that the Hahn picture was not more than 150 years old and a "retouched copy" of the picture in the Louvre.

The case will be resumed Monday.

Letter Threatens Tortures For Little Kidnaped Girl

Doris Murphy's Mother Faints as She Reads Terrible Warning; Another Note Intercepted by Postman; Placed in Mail at Corner Near Child's Home.

San Francisco, Feb. 21 (U.P.).—Meth-ods of torture for Doris Virginia Murphy, 4-year-old victim of a kidnap, were described today in the fourth note signed "K. K." received by parents of the girl.

Doris' mother was first to see the note. She passed into a dead faint from which she could not be revived for several minutes.

"If he is carrying out the threats made in this letter he should be boiled in oil," Detective Sergeant Leo Bunner said.

Another letter addressed to parents of the girl was intercepted tonight by a postman who thought the writing resembled that of the threatening letters. He found it in a mail box about 12 blocks from the girl's home and turned it over to detectives who refused to divulge its contents.

Although a total of four pieces of paper bearing the initials "K. K." have reached the parents of the missing child, officers apparently attributed the first to a child and claimed the handwriting was different than in the others. The last three have followed a definite trend, each containing statements that were mentioned in another.

While the first said, "You'll never find her," the second assured the parents that she was "all right" and would be returned. The next said, "This is the last time I'll write as 'K. K.'" and this declaration was borne out in the fourth.

Search of vacant structures for clues that might lead to the missing girl was continued by police with a scrutiny of all occupied dwellings within a radius of several miles of the Murphy home.

The last three notes received by the mother have been postmarked at a station in the neighborhood.

A famous detective dog, Arnold von Winkler, arrived here from Seattle by airplane and was immediately set to work in an endeavor to follow the trail of the girl. Operations of dragging San Francisco Bay also continued.

Soon after her collapse, Mrs. Murphy recovered composure sufficiently to accompany detectives to the Hall of Justice. The purpose of the trip was not disclosed but as soon as the woman left to return to her home she expressed confidence that her daughter was still alive.

Floods and Death Follow Cold Wave

Greece and Other Portions of Lower Europe Hard Hit; Cattle Lost.

London, Feb. 21 (United Press).—Rising flood water took a large number of lives in Greece and lower European countries today as a new cold wave swept over the continent from Russia.

Many casualties and great damage were reported in the region of Macedonia and along the River Maritza, in dispatches from Athens tonight. It was estimated that 500,000 acres were flooded in Thrace.

Thousands of head of cattle were drowned in the River Maritza area and it was estimated that 150,000 acres had been inundated by the river floods.

At the same time some villages reported snow 35 feet deep which had melted and airplanes were carrying supplies to isolated frontier villages.

Two persons were killed and four injured in Westwood, Nottinghamshire, England, today when the sudden thaw released a great mass of ice in a pit head, hurling it on a case in which fourteen miners were ascending from the pit.

Temperature of between 22 and 31 below zero Fahrenheit was reported along the Volga, Dvina and Don Rivers and in Caucasian and Crimean villages.

Postal Men Find Bomb Addressed to Newspaper

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 21 (A.P.).—A mechanical device with a clock movement, and which the postal authorities said included an explosive, was found in a mail chute at the postoffice today.

It was immediately plunged into a pail of water as a precautionary measure. The clock device was timed to cause an explosion at 3 p. m. It was a brown-covered package addressed to a newspaper. It had been collected by a mail man on his regular rounds and had been dumped with other mail matter into the chute. A sorting clerk examining the package heard a ticking and he doused the parcel in a pail of water. Later the device was turned over to army experts called in from a local factory.

Black Flies Over Sea From Greece to Egypt

Carlo, Egypt, Feb. 21 (A.P.).—Van Lear Black, the Baltimore publisher, arrived here late today on a non-stop flight from Athens. His time was eight hours and fourteen minutes.

He said that he had encountered snowstorms and unfavorable weather as far as the island of Crete. From Crete to Cairo, however, the skies were clear. The publisher and his companions appeared in excellent health. They are parking their plane at the Heliopolis Airfield and will remain in Cairo until they receive permission to fly across Sudan to Khartoum.

'Pep' Salesmanship Described in Court

Agent of J. T. and H. G. Locke Tells of High Values on Stocks.

New York, Feb. 21 (A.P.).—William J. Le Grande, high pressure stock salesman, who said he was a partner in the Canario Copper stock that he bought between $8,000 and $9,000 worth of it himself, described to a Federal court jury today the method by which John T. and Herbert C. Locke and their associates injected "pep" into salesmen.

The Lockes and others are on trial, charged with using the mail to defraud. "I was told many times by Herbert C. Locke that the market in Canario Copper stocks would rise. And it did rise, from $1.25 to $4.25 a share," John T. Locke told me once that the price of Canario stock would go to $10 a share. When he told me that, it was selling at between 50 and 75 cents a share."

Angler Hooks Woman; Saves Life of Bathing

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 21 (A.P.).—A skillful cast by S. J. Oakes, a St. Petersburg fisherman, saved the life of Mrs. S. G. George, a winter visitor here, from Detroit, Mich. She was in bathing yesterday when she went beyond her depth and, unable to swim, began to sink.

Hearing Mrs. George's cries, Oakes cast his line at her. The large hook caught in her finger and the fisherman reeled her in to shore. After a physician had removed the hook, Mrs. George was little the worse for her experience.

Berlin to Deny Entry To Trotsky, Is Report

Berlin, Feb. 21 (U.P.).—Leon Trotsky's application to enter Germany will be acted upon Saturday, it was understood tonight.

Cour. Westarp, Nationalist party leader, has protested granting entry to the former Soviet red army leader, and it was reported that the cabinet probably will refuse permission. Further reports asserting Trotsky is very seriously ill were received here today, but not confirmed.

Spanish Woman Bears Five Babies at One Birth

Valladolid, Spain, Feb. 21 (U.P.).—Sofia Hernandez gave birth to five children at the City Hospital today, all of which died shortly after birth. The woman has been married seven years, during which she has borne twins and five other children. Officials said the birth today, the first ever recorded in Spain, would occur about once in 40,000,000 times.

15 BURNED TO DEATH IN RESIDENCE FIRES

Two Mothers and Thirteen of Sleeping Children Are Victims of Flames.

RESCUE EFFORTS FUTILE

Johnstown, Pa., Feb. 21 (A.P.).—Ten persons perished in this district today when stores, overheated to give protection from a cold wave, set fire to their homes. The victims were two mothers and their eight children.

The fires broke out while the families of Mrs. Margaret Berkey, 27, and her three children, Ervin, 4; Merna, 3; and Melroy, 6 weeks.

Mrs. Mary Mangold, 32, and her five children, Paul, 6; Mary, 4; May, 3; Regis, 2; and Robert, 8 months.

Mrs. Emma Berkey, 27, and her three children, Ervin, 4; Merna, 3; and Melroy, 6 weeks.

Mrs. Mangold was fatally burned while struggling to reach the side of a sleeping child after pushing away neighbors who had penetrated the flames.

Mrs. Berkey also died in futile attempts to save her offspring.

The two homes were destroyed. The Berkey place was a two-story structure. Mangold and a brother, Donald, occupied sleeping quarters on the first floor. Both escaped uninjured.

Chicago, Feb. 21 (A.P.).—Fire, started when a pot of boiling lard ignited, burned to death five children of Mr. and Mrs. John Ooms, of Lansing, Ill., last night. A sixth child and the parents were recovering from serious burns.

The bungalow home of the Ooms was destroyed. Flames from the lard set fire to curtains, and the blaze was beyond control before members of the family realized what had happened.

Mrs. and Mrs. Ooms each grabbed a child and ran outside, their clothing ablaze. Ooms tried to go back into the house but was restrained by neighbors.

Four of the five children, who were asleep when the fire started, had no chance of escape. The fifth, rescued from the building, died later of burns. They were Anna, 4; Edward, 6; Gerbe, 8; Herbert, 13; and Sadie, 9. But Sadie, 11, probably will recover, doctors said.

POLICE LIEUTENANT DEAD OF GAS FUMES

and also used other resuscitation methods but were unable to restore heart action. A hyperdermic of adrenalin administered by Dr. Louis Jimal, of Casualty Hospital, also proved futile.

The body was discovered at 6 o'clock and a few minutes before 7 o'clock, Dr. Jimal pronounced death.

Members of the Police Department who followed the rescue squad to the scene arrived at the theory that Lieut. McQuade was knocked unconscious by an electric current transmitted from the motor through the screw driver to his body and that he was gassed before he regained his faculties. This theory was given credence by the fact that the lieutenant's shoes were wet and that he evidently had just put new spark plugs in the engine. The hood of the motor car was up and the old spark plugs were on a nearby shelf.

Just how long the lieutenant had been in the garage was not known. An invalid aunt, Miss Margaret McQuade, was in the house, but was unable to tell when her nephew had gone into the garage. She was not in the house despite the fact that the carbon monoxide fumes filled her room, as it did other sections of the house.

Lieut. McQuade, who had been a member of the force since 1901, was assigned to the Second Precinct until last October, when he was made night inspector.

He was a member of the Woodmen of the World and the Macabees.

In addition to his son, James, Jr., and his aunt, Lieut. McQuade is survived by another son, Edward J. McQuade, a sister, Mrs. Annie Bastable, and three brothers, Edward J. McQuade, Martin D. McQuade and John McQuade.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

GOVERNOR SOUGHT CASH, LAWYER SAYS

Oklahoma Inquiry Body Told Story of Venality in Convict's Pardon.

$2,500 HINTED PAID HIM

Oklahoma City, Okla., Feb. 21 (A.P.).—A story of financial aid allegedly extended Gov. Henry S. Johnston, now on trial on eleven articles of impeachment, by a lawyer who represented a convict in an effort to obtain a pardon, was related by David L. Carter, of Ponca City, the attorney, before an investigating committee of the house of representatives here today.

Carter was attorney for J. T. Crane, convicted banker, who, after aiding in the preparation of an audit of State penitentiary records, was granted a parole only to be arrested later at Amarillo, Tex., for questioning in connection with purported swindling operations.

On one occasion while Carter was at the governor's office to plead for clemency for his client, Carter said, the governor asked if he had any money for him.

Gift of Fee Alleged.

On a suggestion of J. F. Murray, Carter's law partner in 1927, Carter said the law firm agreed to give Johnston, who was in financial straits, their fee, amounting to approximately $2,500 in a damage suit.

Carter said the committee that he did not know whether the money ever had been paid to the governor but added that although the suit had been successful, he had received no fee.

Crane, while in the penitentiary, aided Clem L. Butler, deputy State examiner in an audit of the penitentiary records, which subsequently was discredited.

Carter said he first visited Johnston to discuss clemency for Crane soon after Johnston was inaugurated and Mrs. O. O. Hammonds, the governor's confidential secretary, was present at the conference.

She was friendly at that time, he added, although she later evinced indifference or displeasure.

Changed Stand on Pardon.

The governor, Carter said, agreed that he would grant a pardon and subsequently wrote a letter confirming this promise, somewhat later to change his attitude by granting a pardon on only one of the six counts on which the banker was convicted. The banker was serving six five-year concurrent terms.

Crane was at liberty under leave of absence and extensions from May, 1927, to January 4, 1929, when he was held as a fugitive after failing to report back to the penitentiary. He now is held in Texas. Extradition proceedings to return him to the Oklahoma Penitentiary are under way.

Representative England Files Election Appeal

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 21 (A.P.).—Counsel for Representative E. T. England, Republican, announced today an appeal would be taken to the State Supreme Court from the decision yesterday of the Kanawha County court which returned to Joe L. Smith, Democrat, a 200 lead he held originally over England in the Sixth District Congressional race.

It was said application would be filed for an alternative writ of mandamus directing the county court to accept the figures of the recount instead of the original figures of the canvassing board.

U. S. SEEN BLOCKING INTERNATIONAL CODE

pean governments will not accept the American theory of a wife's right to retain her own nationality after marriage, except in cases where marriage is supported by her husband's nationality or her husband.

Property Rights Disputed.

Property rights have also been disputed, but it is believed practical agreement would be readily reached because of well-established precedents. Refusal of Latin-American countries to assume responsibility for damages incurred by foreigners during revolutions is one of the main obstacles to agreement in this field.

The preparatory committee which has reviewed the replies of 30 governments to the questionnaire sent out a year ago hopes that Washington's observations will be forthcoming in the near future, as it will otherwise be unable to submit its final recommendations even to the June council of the league.

The preliminary report of the March council on what has been accomplished thus far will recommend that the conference be convened early in 1930. The reason for postponement cited is that the Institute of International Law is meeting in New York during October and November, and the December council would disorganize attendance at a Geneva conference.

In reply, it is learned, it is Washington's delay in answering the questionnaire that is preventing a meeting this summer.

Delay Admitted Here.

Officials of the State Department admitted yesterday that the League of Nations questionnaire covering territorial limits and kindred questions sent more than a year ago in connection with plans for holding the conference on codification of international law remains unanswered.

It was pointed out that the questionnaire is a long, involved document, requiring careful study. No estimate was given as to when a reply will go forward, but indications all point to a further delay. The questionnaire was said to be "under consideration" in the department.

Apparently it was shoved into the background by the negotiations leading to the antiwar treaty, the new arbitration and conciliation treaties, and other matters which have received the personal attention of Secretary Kellogg.

Dill Plans License Fee For Stations

Amateurs Included in Tax by Which It Is Proposed to Make Radio Industry Bring Revenue to the Government.

Legislation which would exact a substantial license fee upon broadcasting stations graduated with regard to the station and a stiff tax on radio advertising programs to enrich the coffers of Uncle Sam and make radio control more or less self-sustaining is the plan of Senator C. C. Dill, of Washington.

At the moment, though the Radio Commission is, according to Senator Dill, costing the country about $300,000 a year, not a cent is being received in return from the radio industry by the Government in the way of license fees or revenue.

"One of the reasons nothing has been done about this," said Senator Dill, "has been that for short-term license it is rather difficult to work out a proper fee. I will say further that I think the time has come when legislation should be provided for a fee, and a substantial fee, especially from the broadcasting license holders for the use of the wave lengths."

"I believe that everybody who gets a license should pay for it, even the amateur, although I think the amateurs should be charged only a nominal fee, but certainly the great broadcasting stations that are spending hundreds of thousands of dollars to build their plants and hundreds of thousands of dollars to put on their programs, and then collecting from advertisers hundreds of thousands of dollars more, ought to pay a very substantial license fee; and I think they would be willing to do so."

"I am sure that I have in mind to introduce and to have passed, if possible, a resolution calling upon the commission to recommend to Congress at the opening session a scale of fees which they think would be appropriate for our consideration, with the view of putting such a law on the books. I do not think it is wise to attempt to amend the law in these respects at this short session of Congress."

Likewise Senator Dill believes the Government should fix the advertising rates charged by radio stations. At present the rates are determined by those who own the stations. The law does not give the Radio Commission power to control in any way rates for broadcast advertising.

"I think that eventually," Senator Dill declared, "a commission—if not this Radio Commission, some other commission or some authority somewhere in the Government—should be given power to regulate the radio advertising rates just as we regulate radio rates."

To while away the monotony of the waiting crowd, Col. D. S. Grant, Jr., working out a scheme whereby, through the means of public address system horns, the broadcasting of the inauguration ceremony of the Capitol may be heard in Pennsylvania avenue grandstands and later the description of the parade en route.

As yet the scheme only contemplates taking care of the stands in front of the White House, but if found practicable, others may be included later.

Cornelia Otis Skinner will contribute some of her popular character sketches as the outstanding feature of the first in the new series of broadcasts that the Kodak Hour will present over a nationwide hookup of stations of the Columbia Broadcasting System on Friday night, March 1.

Although Miss Skinner is the daughter of the famous actor, Otto Skinner, and has inherited much of her personality and charm, she is an artist in her own right and one who has already met with considerable success over the radio.

The Leaning Tower of Pisa.

IN NORTHERN Italy is a city called Pisa. It is the chief claim to fame is that it is the home of a tower which leans to one side. The top of the tower is 14 feet more to that side than it would be if the building stood straight up.

Work was begun on the tower about 750 years ago—in the year 1174, to be exact. Everything went well until the third story was completed. Then the architect noticed that his building was "leaning over." The ground under one side of the base must have been softer than the rest.

For a while no more work was done; but the architect decided to keep on until the upper stories were complete. He decided that the tower would stand if the upper stories were made so as to allow for the leaning. He knew that the "center of weight" must not be beyond the side of the structure.

That architect died long before the building was finished, but his idea has proved correct by the passage of time. The top story—the eighth—was completed about 1350 and the tower has stood ever since. Thousands of persons from foreign lands visit Pisa each year, chiefly in order to see the tower which leans but does not fall.

An interesting event took place in the Leaning Tower of Pisa two centuries after it was finished. A young teacher at the University of Pisa went to the top carrying a heavy piece of metal and a light piece. The man's name was Galileo.

"You claim," said Galileo to other teachers, "that from weighing twice as much will fall twice as fast. Now I am going to prove that you are wrong." Galileo let the two weights fall at the same time, and they struck the ground together. By actual test he had proved the error which had been taught by other teachers.

LABOR CHIEFS WAR ON AGE "DEADLINE"

Green Authorized by Council to Make Survey; Blamed on Insurance System.

IMMIGRATION HELD ISSUE

Miami, Fla., Feb. 21 (A.P.)—President William F. Green, of the American Federation of Labor, was authorized today by the executive council of the association to begin at an early date an investigation in several States of an alleged "40 to 45 year deadline" of various employers.

The council also went on record as being opposed to any changes to increase the quotas of immigrants from any country and, through its president, announced that communism held no "serious threat" for organized labor in the United States.

Green was instructed to ask for cooperation of State and city labor federations and also for legislative action in the various States through committees in the "deadline" survey.

"Married Men Barred"

Council members were quoted as expressing their belief that some employers are using the deadline and discriminating against married men with dependents, in order that cost of liability insurance may be cut down.

It was pointed out that these practices are not in evidence, as far as known, in States where the exclusive fund plan for liability payments has been adopted, but that they are in evidence where competitive plans are used.

Further restrictive legislation in regard to immigration was favored by the council today, the body going on record as opposing any change in quota basis from the 1890 census to any proposal having to do with national origins and opposing any measure that would increase the quota from any country.

"Communism Not Threat"

Earlier in the day the council had been quoted by Green as finding no serious threat to organized labor from communism. Reports of successful efforts by the Ladies' Garment Workers' Union in New York City to stamp out, with the help of the federation, communist attempts to disorganize the union, were made today. Another alleged defeat of communism was reported by the Fur Workers' International Union, which has signed a three-year agreement with manufacturers, fur trimmers and a smaller body of employers of fur workers. The council announced prizes totaling $1,000 for acceptable designs by sculptors and artists for a Gompers memorial monument to be erected on a site designated by Congress in Washington, D. C.

The monument, President Green said, would cost approximately $100,000 and would be started as soon after the May meeting of the council as designs could be chosen and contracts awarded.

Mine Cave-In Kills Worker; 25 Trapped

Passage Cut Through Debris at Shaft Near Butler, Pa., Frees Miners.

Butler, Pa., Feb. 21 (A.P.)—A cave-in brought death to one miner and trapped 25 others for time today at a mine of the Filer Coal Co. at Mayme Station near here.

Tons of rock and slate fell on Robert Margadonia, 39, when an empty mine car on which he was riding jumped the track and knocked down five props supporting the mine roof. Robert Peters, motorman on the car, escaped by jumping.

A passage was cut in the fallen earth to permit the 25 miners to gain the outer air. The cave-in occurred about 300 feet from the slope entry. Margadonia's body was recovered after three hours' work. He is survived by a widow and seven children.

Cannon, Hidden Off Cuba, Said to Antedate Columbus

Government Places Guard Over Ancient Weapons, Believed to Contain Pirate Treasure; Cache Discovered by Descendants of Cortez, the Conquistador.

Havana, Cuba, Feb. 21 (United Press).—The Cuban government is investigating the discovery of a cache of ancient cannon found by two fishermen near Key Largo, off the southern coast of Cuba, and purports to offer a proof that Columbus was not the first European navigator to reach America.

The cache, believed to contain rich pirate treasure, was found by the brothers, Rafael and Felucho Cortez, and examined yesterday by a party of newspaper men who went to Batabano to investigate reports of the discovery. The cache was about 15 feet under water, the cannon being laid one above the other, indicating they had been hidden there by pirates or rovers. They bore dates antedating the date of Columbus' voyage as far as their origin is concerned.

For many years there have been reports of buried pirate treasure in the vicinity, and officials hope they will be able to set definitely the date of the pirate visit if they discover treasure.

Paroled Killer Held Wholesale Forger

Michigan Claims Prisoner as Chicagoans Clamor to Prosecute.

Chicago, Feb. 21 (A.P.)—Troubles heaped themselves upon the head of Frank E. Weber, 33, of Nashville, today. He was held in jail facing countless charges of passing worthless checks.

While nearly a score of Chicago firms sought to press charges against him, Michigan authorities arrived seeking to take him in custody for escaping from the State reformatory at Jackson, Mich., last June, while he was serving a five to fifteen-year sentence for previous check forgery.

Chicago police said Weber claimed to be a member of a wealthy Nashville family. They said he had been paroled from a sentence for murder in Kentucky.

Police said Weber claimed he had a brother, Harold Weber, of Nashville, who owned a chain of department stores in the South. He told police his family's political influence obtained for him a pardon which freed him of the sentence for murder.

SPAIN KEPT QUIET BY RIGID RESTRAINT

Troops Are Held in Barracks; Artillery Officers Seized; Censorship Tight.

FEW DETAILS LEAK OUT

London, Feb. 21 (A.P.)—Advises received in London today from Madrid indicated that a rigorous censorship was in force throughout Spain, making it difficult to communicate to the outside world the exact status of affairs in that country following yesterday's decree for disbandment of the artillery corps of the army.

The advice stated that messages from all parts of Spain showed that the kingdom was quiet. There were no disturbances in either Segovia or Galicia, both of which had been reported yesterday as the scene of disorders.

It was stated further that the officers of the disbanded artillery corps were accepting the change without resistance. The officers were signing agreements to take the oath of allegiance if called back into service. The government thus would be able to choose just which leaders of the disaffected branch of the military service should be reinstated.

Several members of the officers' junta, made up largely of men who lost their commissions after previous attempts to overthrow the dictatorship of Gen. Primo de Rivera, have been in custody. Among the detained is Gen. Fabriciano Haro y Porto. He was dismissed as chief of the artillery section because of an uprising in September, 1926.

Several other generals, arrested at the time of the disturbance in Valencia about ten days ago, are still held. Troops throughout the country were kept in their barracks again today as a precautionary measure.

The advice added that the civil population of Spain was being kept under rigid restraint so as to preclude demonstrations which might occur if this restraint was lacking.

London, Feb. 21 (A.P.)—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch today from Hendaye, on the Spanish border, says that Gen. Primo de Rivera, by disbandment of the Spanish artillery, caused serious incidents in Segovia.

A body of infantry is reported to have disobeyed its officers in refusing to open fire on a group of mutinous artillerymen. The dispatch says the cadets seized their officers and held them prisoners for several hours until they were released by the local gendarmerie.

6 Months to 3 Years For Slayer of Husband

New York, Feb. 21 (A.P.)—Mrs. Dorothy C. Leonard, convicted of manslaughter for fatally stabbing her husband, a Flushing policeman, received an indeterminate sentence of six months to three years today.

Owensville, Ind., Feb. 21 (N.Y. N.S.)—The ministers of several churches of southern Indiana have taken steps which probably will cause the attendance at Sunday services to fall off.

Both Sides in Oil Fight Strike Foes

Rockefeller and Stewart Camps, in Statements, Defy Opposition.

New York, Feb. 21 (A.P.)—Broadside were fired from both camps today in the fight of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to oust Col. Robert W. Stewart from the chairmanship of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana.

The Rockefeller committee issued a statement in the form of a letter to "a Midwest banker" who is a stockholder in the Standard Oil of Indiana, asserting that "we can grasp the truth of all of Col. Stewart's almost incredible story, and still, on his own admission, we must come to the conclusion that he has lost the right to our confidence in his leadership."

From Col. Stewart's camp, Albert L. Hopkins, Col. Stewart's personal attorney, issued a statement that the Rockefeller committee's document "represents the 72-page document issued by Mr. Rockefeller's brother-in-law, for in it he frankly admits that the effort of Mr. Aldrich to involve Col. Stewart with Teapot Dome and Secretary Fall in that document was unwarranted by any facts known to any one."

TORRENT DEFEATS FAVORITE IN STRETCH AT MIAMI

Malley Rides Law Colt to Victory

Stand By, Choice, Is All Out to Save the Place.

Star Rider Also Wins With Congo II by 8 Lengths.

HIALEAH RACE TRACK, Miami, Fla., Feb. 21 (N.Y.N.S.)—Commodore Robert Law, of the New York Yacht Club, showed his racing colors for the first time on the turf at the Miami Jockey Club here this afternoon and had the satisfaction of seeing them carried to victory by Torrent, a 4-year-old colt by Thunderbolt, which he purchased the day before.

Torrent, well ridden by Jockey Malley, won the Arlington Park Purse, the feature of the card, for 3-year-olds and upward, at 2:30. He was ridden by Jockey Malley, who was riding for the first time on the turf at the Miami Jockey Club here this afternoon and had the satisfaction of seeing them carried to victory by Torrent, a 4-year-old colt by Thunderbolt, which he purchased the day before.

Seven went to the post and Mars Cassidy got one of his few good starts at the meeting, for the seven races more than a sixth of a mile before our own showed in front, with Stand By forcing the pace. Our own bore out in the run around the stretch turn, fighting for his head and Stand By and Torrent saved a lot of ground on the rail. When straightened out for the run in, Torrent came away easily, but Stand By was all out to save the place. The others were beaten off.

Malley followed up his victory on Torrent with another on Congo II, which romped home by eight lengths in the final event on the program at one mile and a quarter. Festival was second as far in front of Solo as it was in a fast-run race. The time, 2:05, being 1-5 of a second behind the track record.

Jockey M. Knight started off by riding the first two winners on the card, Irish Marine and Wrench.

Both scored easily. Irish Marine beat H. P. Whitney's Cox Sergeant by 8 lengths and a half, while Wrench, a third year old, won the 6-furlong race, by 2 lengths, with Thunder Girl third.

Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith will pay a return visit to the track here tomorrow afternoon.

PAULINO CHRISTNER BEATS JUNIATA GOLF FOR HIGH SCHOOLS

School Board To Accept His Offer

Prize To Be Impetus to Game Among Student Bodies.

Golf Is Major Sport in Many Schools in Country.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

VICE PRESIDENT CHARLES G. DAWES has offered a handsome silver trophy for competition between the golf teams of four Washington high schools and the offer has been accepted. This contest will add another fixed event to the golfing calendar of the District.

For some years past the high school golf enthusiasts have been making a competition on the East Potomac. Public links course and have struggled with nothing to show for their efforts except more or less empty trophy cases. The contest, however, is expected to do much to interest the public in the game, and the public links committee of the United States Golf Association and last week he addressed a meeting of the Superintendent Ballou, inviting attention to the lack of recognition of golf in the high schools. The fact that when some of the schools conducted a tournament at Rock Creek Park for boys 16 years of age and under, there were over 100 players, and nearly half of whom were students of the school, to enter high school. Then he added: "I believe I am now in a position to offer something that will prove of interest to those students in the high schools who are golf enthusiasts."

The acceptance of the trophy by the school board will give a real impetus to golf among the high schools students, many of whom are already showing great promise in the game. In addition, it places Washington in the rapidly growing list of cities according to recognition to golf as a clean and healthy sport in which it is desirable that the boys engage. There is a constantly increasing number of municipal golf courses and in many cities officials in charge provide a special annual fee for the boys, much lower than the regular fee, to encourage them to play. In Dallas, Tex., for instance, maintains a golf course that is free to school children. In one year, this course showed a total number of rounds of 1,500.

Acceptance of Trophy Gives Impetus to Game Among Students.

It will be remembered that the Roland Mackenzie was awarded a letter for golf at Western. The school board had received a national reputation while still a student. Golf Is Major Sport in Many Schools in Country.

In New York, N. J., there are schools with golf teams. In Seattle, Wash., sport for the past four years, have been awarded letters for golf. The data is both interesting and convincing. In Lincoln, Neb., where, for instance, golf tournament is sponsored each year while a State high school league is held last year at Omaha, with teams competing.

If the bout goes the limit, Paulino should have the best chance to win the decision. Christner's heavy-lift right, however, may stop the fight about ten rounds.

Lo Magnolia, who will referee the Paulino-Christner fight, recently reaching Paulino's camp. Magnolia said he comes in with both arms flying and he is extremely to the fight. He makes a poor target to the winner of the Paulino-Christner bout will be the logical opponent for fight.

The ultimate winner of the three bouts will be somewhere close to the heavyweight championship.

TILDEN HERE FOR MATCH MARCH 16

Hunter Also Will Play on Tech High Court; New Date Set.

WASHINGTON tennis enthusiasts will have a chance to see Bill Tilden and Francis Hunter, top players in action before the new Tech High Court, which is expected to be ready for a spring campaign against net celebrities of the continent.

Tilden and Hunter will feature a program of exhibition matches to be staged in the new Tech High School Gymnasium on Saturday, March 16.

Originally planned for Tilden's appearance here on March 9, but a change was necessary because Hunter's Southern tour would not end until a week later.

The matches will be held under most ideal conditions in the Tech Gymnasium and will be progressing rapidly on the installation of special lighting equipment consisting of twelve 1,000-watt reflectors. There will be room for 3,000 spectators. It is expected that a large audience will be on hand. A delegation of Baltimore tennis fans will be present.

The exhibition will be staged jointly by the Public Schools and Center Department of the Community Center of Washington. In charge of the program is William Johnson, athletic supervisor of the Community Center and Public Parks Edgemoor Club, which will be the official referee.

YOUR BOY AND YOUR GIRL

By ARTHUR DEAN, S. D.
The Parent Counselor.

We Must Answer Youth.
If I had my life to live over again, a college president once told me, "I'd wear a frock coat and tall hat on Sundays, go to the largest church in town, belong to all the best clubs, join half a dozen secret orders, hide in a car I couldn't afford and live right up to the minute financially and socially."

I'd never commit myself on any subject beyond the weather. My speeches would be twaddle. I'd neither say, do or think anything which was original, thoughtful, purposeful or really useful. I'd accept outworn ideas on religion, science, sociology and economics."

This particular man is an inspiration to his students. The intellectual members of the faculty admire him. The scholars of the world welcome him to their councils. Mentally the man is absolutely honest; fearless in his search for truth and fair to others in his interpretation of it; unselfish and disinterested to an extraordinary degree.

In a mental note I said to myself, "Some recent incident has discouraged you. You are only talking to let your self out. You'll never do any of these things. Nevertheless I'll give you a year before you're fired, or I miss my guess, and then he will join the procession of ministers, school superintendents, professors, presidents and statesmen who have chopped through the weeds of ignorance and prejudice only to discover that the ax got them in the place where the rooster eventually gets his reward."

I am not worrying about this particular college president or any other truth seeker who may be on the point of losing his job. In every instance such men have landed on both feet after having turned a somersault impelled by the kick of a governing board.

My concern is with youth. Every time a prominent minister is assailed by an equally prominent pastor of a rival denomination (and why such rivalry, I ask) a large number of young people lose another chunk of their faith; on every occasion when an efficient school superintendent loses his position through the maliciousness of a mayor, a hundred promising young men vow that they will quit the teaching profession; for every direct-iron-the-shoulder college president who resigns under fire there are ten college presidents who shrink still more in their shoes to one who girds anew his armor for truth's battles; for every political crook who gets away with his plunder there are ten boys who swear they will never enter politics.

I know whereof I speak. Letter after letter from young people ask me point blank: Does it really pay to be decent? What's the use of having ideals if one can not use them? What's the use of plodding along when the go-getter gets everything? Why should I study to become a scientist when money is the thing on which the world revolves? What am I to believe when the church knocks — preaching? Why be efficient and honest in a political job and spend your time dodging the rocks fired at you?

Mothers and fathers write in a similar vein. In face of the evidence, what answer do you give your son or daughter?

Tomorrow, "My Answer to a Son."

OUR CONVERSATION CORNER.
All of the Time.

Day should be the happiest time of a child's life?

MOTHER OF FIVE.
Answer—All of the time. A child will be most restless when he is bored. And most quarrelsome in the early evening. Whipping is a good barometer sign that a storm is brewing. Many parents confess that they do not reprimand small children after 6 p. m. Instead they hustle them to bed as soon as the behavior barometer falls.

Temptation.
How can I avoid temptation?

YOUTH OF SIXTEEN.
Answer—Go prepared to avoid it and not be like the boy who went prepared to be tempted.

This boy came home shivering and wet. Evidently he'd been skating, and the ice had let him through. "I told you the ice was too thin," said his mother. "I told you not to go skating. Why did you disobey me?" "I wouldn't have disobeyed you for anything," he said, "only some bad boys tempted me from the ice."

"But you took your skates along. How about that?"
"I took 'em along, mother, because somehow I just knew, how I'd be tempted."

What Today Means to You

FEBRUARY 22
By MARY BLAKE

"FISHER."
February 22 is your birthday, the most propitious hours for you today are from 10 a. m. to 11:15 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 2 p. m., from 4:15 p. m. to 5:15 p. m., and from 9 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 11:45 to 12:45 p. m., and from 7 p. m. to 8 p. m.

Spasmodic attempts to concentrate and discharge your duties will mark today. A feeling of general inertia will prevail, and only those who are very strong-willed will be able to withstand its attacks.

The child born today will be rather impulsive and subject to moods. It will love its parents wholeheartedly, and will laugh if the same is not reciprocated. It will be a rather apt and an intelligent student and will be amenable.

You are very careful and exact in whatever you do. Your home or business is a model of well-run efficiency, and you are untiring and zealous in your efforts to create, of what you have, something perfect. It may be said that you are a disciple of the creed: "Nothing makes the soul so pure, so religious, as the endeavor to create something perfect." You show this ambition in your own personal appearance, and you strive at all times to be perfectly and tastefully attired. There is nothing affectation in this; you merely do it for your own happiness, and to be seen at your best is but natural to you.

You are rather envious of those who possess more than you do. It is rather a pity to add that this often turns into strong and intense dislike. Try and correct this fault by adopting the philosophy, "We see how much a man has, and, therefore, we envy him; did we see how little he enjoys, we should rather pity him!" Be content with the happy lot Fate has bestowed on you, for, though it appears very difficult for you sometimes to make the grade, success and abundance will come to you bountifully in later years!

You are very fond of reading, and all literary pursuits attract and interest you. You will naturally gain great culture and poise through the satisfying of this penchant. Your marital relations promise to be the average. You will make a splendid parent.

$250,000 Ship Blaze

Is Blamed on Cigarette

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 21 (A.P.).—Fire believed to have been started by a carelessly flicked cigarette butt last night burned two lake passenger ships and a steam tug to the water's edge and seriously damaged another excursion steamer, with estimated damage of $250,000. The ships were tied up on the Detroit River at Ecorse.

The Sappho, a ferryboat owned by the Nicholson Universal Steamship Co.; the Erie, a steel ship owned by the White Star Lines; the Dover, excursion vessel, and the tug Annie Nolles, were the ships concerned.

Fire department officials said they believed the fire was started by a look-out for run runners who had gone aboard one of the craft to watch for a signal from the Canadian shore.
